Publisher's announcement.—The NEWS-LEADER is the only evening paper in Richmond and Manchester, Va. Its average daily circulation during 1904 was 28,575, of which 10,000 was outside of Richmond. The circulation in January and February, 1905, exceeded 30,000 daily. The circulation is surpassed by but one daily paper in the South. The daily sales in Richmond exceed the number both of private families and occupied houses in the city. The NEWS-LEADER leads its field in Want Ads and brings best returns to large space users. Circulation books open to those interested. Inquiries in regard to publicity in Virginia solicited and prompt and accurate service guaranteed.

☞ The absolute correctness of the latest circulation rating accorded the Times-Dispatch is guaranteed by the publishers of Rowell's American Newspaper Directory, who will pay one hundred dollars to the first person who successfully controverts its accuracy.

Publisher's announcement.—The TIMES DISPATCH is the leading paper of Richmond and Virginia, and is the only paper which thoroughly covers the State of Virginia. It is the only morning paper in Richmond, and its Sunday edition is the only newspaper in the city on that day. The TIMES-DISPATCH has more circulation daily and Sunday than any morning paper in the South, with the exception of Atlanta, Memphis and New Orleans, and has the largest two-cent circulation, either morning or evening, in the South, with the exception of the above named cities.

The TIMES-DISPATCH has nearly five thousand more circulation than the combined circulations of both the TIMES and the DISPATCH when they were conducted as separate newspapers, and the circulation is still growing. There is no duplication in the TIMES-DISPATCH circulation. It is one paper to a home and a home for every paper.

The TIMES-DISPATCH goes into 90 per cent of the homes of Richmond and into thousands of the best homes in Virginia.

Publisher's announcement.—Average circulation, October, November and December, 1904, 37,000 Daily; 45,450 Sunday. Average January, 1905, Daily 37,181; Sunday, 46,134. The TIMES has made the most marvelous growth of any daily paper on the Pacific Coast since it passed into possession of its present publishers in 1896. If the DAILY TIMES cannot show a circulation larger by 17,000 daily than any other paper on the North Pacific Coast, it will forfeit $1,000 to any public charity in the city of Seattle. Also, it will give a like sum if it can be shown that any other Sunday paper in the State of Washington has half the circulation of the SUNDAY TIMES.

Publisher's announcement.—The Tacoma LEDGER has a larger average sworn circulation than any morning daily in Western Washington. It is the home paper of Tacoma, and is read by more people than any other newspaper printed or circulated in its field. It has a larger circulation in Puyallup, Sumner, Orting, Ellensburg, North Yakima, Olympia, Centralia, Chehalis, Aberdeen, Hoquiam, Bellingham, Everett and fifty smaller towns, than any daily newspaper published in Tacoma. It is the only morning daily in Washington that issues a colored comic supplement with its Sunday edition. In four years the circulation of the daily and Sunday editions has increased nearly 100 per cent. Tacoma has 70,000 people. Of these nearly 10,000 are factory employees, with a monthly payroll of $700,000. Tacoma bank clearings for 1904 were $ 15,793,859.78, an increase of $17,500,000 over 1903.

NEWS; every evening except Sunday, and WEEKLY, twice a week, Tuesdays and Fridays; independent; eight to twelve pages 17¼x22¾; subscription—daily $5, weekly $1; established—daily 1883, weekly 1882; Albert Johnson, editor; Daily News Publishing Company, publishers (1—4).

Publisher's announcement.—Sworn average daily circulation of the Tacoma DAILY NEWS for the three months ending December 31, 15,151. Average circulation of the Saturday issue for the same period, 18,089. The NEWS goes into seven-eighths of the homes of Tacoma and a large proportion of the homes of 200 towns, comprising its field through Washington, Western Idaho, Northeastern Oregon and Alaska. Tacoma has a population of 70,000. Its mills and factories employ 10,000 wage earners, with monthly payrolls exceeding $600,000. Its ocean commerce in 1904 amounted to $41,250,000. Jobbing trade, $28,000,000. Bank clearings, $115,000,000. Real estate transfers, $7,000,000. Building improvements, $2,000,000. City and municipal improvements, $1,100,000. Two electric power plants near Tacoma generate 30,000 horsepower. Over 8,000 men are employed in mills, mines, logging camps and factories of tributary towns, making 18,000 wage earners reached daily by the DAILY NEWS. Advertising contracts subject to a guarantee of a larger circulation in Tacoma and Southwestern Washington than the combined circulation of all other dailies printed or circulated in this field.

Publisher's announcement.—There is twice as much reading matter in The Evening WISCONSIN as there is in most penny papers. It takes twice as long to read The Evening WISCONSIN as it does to read a penny paper. As a consequence it is worth twice as much to advertisers, for the longer a paper can hold the attention of the reader the more valuable it is to the advertiser.

A newspaper of character like The Evening WISCONSIN has continuous readers. The value of continuous readers to advertisers is cumulative.

It is the opinion of Mr. Simon of the Boston Store that the readers of The Evening WISCONSIN are worth four times as much per capita to the advertiser as the readers of cheap and characterless newspapers. The Boston Store advertises largely in the WISCONSIN, but does not use the penny papers.

Publisher's announcement.—In October, 1903, a committee of merchants comprising the largest advertisers of Milwaukee, in conjunction with the daily newspapers of Milwaukee, had the circulation of all Milwaukee papers save two examined by Stuart & Young, certified public accountants of Chicago, under a $50,000 bond, and that investigation, which was the only reliable one ever conducted in Milwaukee, more than substantiated any circulation figures ever given out by the GERMANIA.

As to actual figures it showed that the GERMANIA stands second as to paid city circulation and third as to total paid circulation among all Milwaukee newspapers, while exclusive of street sales the GERMANIA ABEND-POST is the first paper in point of home circulation in the City and County of Milwaukee. A fac simile of the report of Stuart & Young on all Milwaukee papers will be sent free by the GERMANIA on request to those interested. Milwaukee's population is 310,000, of which 67 per cent are Germans, and of these 75 per cent read the GERMANIA.

A representative of the American Advertisers' Association also examined the GERMANIA's circulation in February, 1905.

The GERMANIA carries equally as much advertising in its Daily and Sunday editions, each seven days of week, as any other Milwaukee paper, English or German.

FACTS ABOUT

The Vancouver Province

ITS FIELD

Embraces, besides the Cities of Vancouver and New Westminster, the whole of the Mainland of British Columbia, Vancouver Island and Yukon Territory.

ITS CIRCULATION

Is greater than that of any two other newspapers published in British Columbia. Its books and records are open to inspection. THE PROVINCE prints daily its circulation figures and furnishes an affidavit of their correctness.

ITS ADVERTISING.

THE PROVINCE carries of paid advertising almost double the amount of any of its contemporaries. It requests inquiries from local advertisers as to its value as an advertising medium.

Publisher's announcement.—A reference to the circulation reports in the American Newspaper Directory for the years 1901-'02-'03-'04 reveals the fact that the Manitoba FREE PRESS, Winnipeg, is credited with enjoying a larger circulation than that possessed by all the other daily newspapers combined published in the Canadian Northwest, including those printed in the city of Winnipeg; and the Weekly FREE PRESS is credited with possessing a larger circulation than that given to any other weekly publication. Advertising rates in the FREE PRESS are flat. Advertisers are invited to "pull out if it does not pay," and are given the privilege of canceling contracts and withdrawing advertising at pleasure.

Sell to Canada's German Population

Over 150,000 Germans are taking a foremost part in the marvelous development of Western Canada.

They are intelligent, well-to-do and form large settlements throughout the country.

"DER NORDWESTEN" is the one high-class German Newspaper that reaches this large field; it covers it thoroughly and exclusively—no duplicating. "DER NORDWESTEN" therefore offers to general advertisers a large special field.

II.

OVER 1,000 CIRCULATION.

ONE THOUSAND IS THE GENERAL ADVERTISER'S UNIT OF VALUE. TO THE GENERAL ADVERTISER PAPERS OF LESS THAN A THOUSAND ISSUES ARE NOT OF MUCH ACCOUNT, BECAUSE THE COST OF WATCHING CONTRACTS AND KEEPING ACCOUNTS, ADDED TO THE LOWEST OBTAINABLE PRICE (NO MATTER HOW LOW), GENERALLY MAKES THEM TOO DEAR TO BE PROFITABLE. OF ALL THE PUBLICATIONS DESCRIBED IN THIS BOOK NEARLY THREE-QUARTERS ARE RATED IN THE "JKL" CLASS, LEAVING ABOUT SIX THOUSAND THAT ARE BELIEVED TO HAVE A CIRCULATION EACH ISSUE OF ONE THOUSAND COPIES AND UPWARDS. A CATALOGUE OF THESE HERE FOLLOWS, GIVING NAME, FREQUENCY OF ISSUE AND CIRCULATION RATING. THE YEARLY SUBSCRIPTION PRICE IS ALSO GIVEN IN CASES WHERE IT IS LESS THAN ONE DOLLAR.

EVERY PUBLISHER OF A NEWSPAPER ENTITLED TO A HIGHER CIRCULATION RATING THAN IS ACCORDED IN THIS BOOK KNOWS THAT IT WAS HIS PRIVILEGE TO HAVE HIS EXACT FIGURES INSERTED HAD HE BEEN ABLE AND WILLING TO FURNISH THEM. IN CASES WHERE A PUBLISHER IS UNWILLING TO SUPPLY THE REQUISITE INFORMATION, THE EXPERIENCE OF THE EDITOR OF THE DIRECTORY HAS TAUGHT HIM THAT IT IS ALWAYS FOR A REASON MORE SATISFACTORY TO THE PUBLISHER THAN IT WOULD BE TO AN ADVERTISER WHO IS THINKING OF USING THE ADVERTISING COLUMNS OF THE PAPER.*

SUNDAY NEWSPAPERS.

A LIST IN ALPHABETICAL ORDER BY STATES AND TOWNS, RECAPITULATING ALL NEWSPAPERS HAVING A SUNDAY ISSUE AS CATALOGUED IN PART I.

EVERY PUBLISHER OF A NEWSPAPER ENTITLED TO A HIGHER CIRCULATION RATING THAN IS ACCORDED IN THIS BOOK KNOWS THAT IT WAS HIS PRIVILEGE TO HAVE HIS EXACT FIGURES INSERTED HAD HE BEEN ABLE AND WILLING TO FURNISH THEM. IN CASES WHERE A PUBLISHER IS UNWILLING TO SUPPLY THE REQUISITE INFORMATION, THE EXPERIENCE OF THE EDITOR OF THE DIRECTORY HAS TAUGHT HIM THAT IT IS ALWAYS FOR A REASON MORE SATISFACTORY TO THE PUBLISHER THAN IT WOULD BE TO AN ADVERTISER WHO IS THINKING OF USING THE ADVERTISING COLUMNS OF THAT PAPER.*

CLASS PUBLICATIONS.

A LIST OF NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PERIODICALS OF THE VARIOUS CLASSES, TRADES AND INTERESTS, ARRANGED IN ALPHABETICAL ORDER BY STATES AND TOWNS IN WHICH THEY ARE PUBLISHED, GIVING NAME, FREQUENCY OF ISSUE AND LATEST CIRCULATION RATING AS INDICATED IN PART I.

EVERY PUBLISHER OF A NEWSPAPER ENTITLED TO A HIGHER CIRCULATION RATING THAN IS ACCORDED IN THIS BOOK KNOWS THAT IT WAS HIS PRIVILEGE TO HAVE HIS EXACT FIGURES INSERTED HAD HE BEEN ABLE AND WILLING TO FURNISH THEM. IN CASES WHERE A PUBLISHER IS UNWILLING TO SUPPLY THE REQUISITE INFORMATION, THE EXPERIENCE OF THE EDITOR OF THE DIRECTORY HAS TAUGHT HIM THAT IT IS ALWAYS FOR A REASON MORE SATISFACTORY TO THE PUBLISHER THAN IT WOULD BE TO AN ADVERTISER WHO IS THINKING OF USING THE ADVERTISING COLUMNS OF THAT PAPER.*

COST OF ADVERTISING

—IN—

Rowell's American Newspaper Directory

FOR 1906

The next issue of Rowell's American Newspaper Directory will appear during the second half of May, 1906. The subscription price of the book is $10, net cash. It will be delivered, carriage paid, to any point in North America on receipt of price.

DISPLAYED ADVERTISEMENTS

All displayed advertisements in Rowell's American Newspaper Directory for 1906 will appear in the catalogue part of the book and within the pages of the respective States, thus giving a publisher's display advertisement virtually a preferred position at no advance over the ordinary rate.

One quarter page costs $20, including a free copy of the book

One-half page costs $30, including a free copy of the book

One page costs $50, including a free copy of the book

Where a publisher desires that his display advertisement shall appear on or opposite the page of the catalogue description of his own paper, and where this request is granted, the charge for such display space will be twenty at the prices mentioned in the above schedule. All display advertisements which are paid for in advance, less the customary 5 per cent for cash, are entitled to a free insertion of the same advertisement in one issue of Printers' Ink. Every advertiser to the amount of $25 or over, is entitled to a free copy of the Directory, delivered carriage paid.

PUBLISHERS' ANNOUNCEMENTS

A "publisher's announcement" may have a place in the Directory in the column with and directly following the catalogue description of the paper, being set in type (nonpareil) with the letterpress, preceded by the words, Publisher's Announcement. In such an announcement it is possible for a publisher to say to the advertiser anything and everything that he claims in the way of superiority of his paper over others, and to place his statement in a spot where the advertiser cannot fail to read it. The charge for such an announcement is $1 a line (average six words to a line).

Orders amounting to less than $1.00 cannot be accepted unless paid for in advance. Publishers announcements of less than twenty lines do not entitle the publisher to a free copy of the book.

DISCOUNT FOR CASH

Five per cent may be deducted from prices named, on orders amounting to ten dollars or more, if copy of advertisement and check in full settlement accompany the order.

What Constitutes Circulation.

Thirty-seven Years' Evolution of a Definition.

BY MR. GEORGE P. ROWELL.

Precisely, what do we mean when we ask a newspaper man what is your circulation? What does he have in mind when he makes reply to the inquiry? A sufficient answer to these two interrogatories would contain an authoritative definition of the word circulation as in use by advertising and newspaper men, but no such authoritative definition has found its way into a dictionary, nor has any such been accepted by a majority of those most interested. It is a subject to which, it is probable, the writer has expended more time and thought than anybody else has seen occasion to devote to it.

In the year 1869, under the auspices of the writer, there appeared in the initial volume of Rowell's American Newspaper Directory the first effort ever made to learn, set down and publish the circulation of newspapers, somewhat after the manner adopted by the Mercantile Agency for reporting the comparative wealth of merchants, bankers and manufacturers. The idea that the word circulation needed any definition did not then occur to him. He asked of the newspaper publisher, "What is your circulation?" and if figures were given in reply they were accepted as satisfactory and reported in good faith.

An examination of the reports published in Rowell's Newspaper Directory for the year 1869, for the periodicals issued in the State of New York, shows that the idea of revealing circulation did not take any strong hold upon the newspaper publishers of that time. Out of a total of 692 publications 427 failed to convey any information at all on the subject; 206 made claims which were reported as given; thirty-nine prefaced their claims by the word "about" and twenty, that is one out of every thirty-five, gave information so positive and definite as to indicate an appreciation of the question and an ability and willingness to answer it.

Guided by the experiences of a preceding year the editor in charge of the revision of the Directory for 1870 and 1871, adopted rules for his guidance, as follows:

Note.—If a willingness was expressed on the part of the publishers to make affidavit to the figures, they have been printed as given. Without the expressed willingness to substantiate the figures, the word claimed has been prefixed. Where no figures have been furnished me I have estimated according to the best information in my possession, and prefixed the word about. Where this has been done, I have in all cases sent a proof to the publishers and received no correction.

NELSON CHESMAN, Editor.

In 1871 the total number of papers issued in the United States was set down at 5,983 of which 548 were credited with circulations exceeding 5,000, and eleven had exceeding 100,000 accorded them. It was stated that the total number of papers published had doubled within six years.

No change in the method of dealing with circulation ratings is to be noted in the Directory for 1872-3, but from the issue for 1874 it may be learned that in some instances, from local jealousies or other causes, it has come about that the accuracy of the circulation statements, made by some publishers, have been questioned; and it was stated that when doubts appeared to have some substantial foundation the publisher of the paper in question had been given an opportunity to verify his claim, and, if he did so, the fact that such verification had been made, was indicated in the Directory by a specified symbol attached to the circulation figures; and that if he failed to make a satisfactory response to the application for a verification, that circumstance was also indicated by a symbol, and the figures claimed but not verified were reduced to something approaching correctness as indicated by the information furnished by those who had assumed to be possessed of a knowledge of the facts.

In the preface of the Directory for 1875 it is stated that with the exception of two Sunday School papers no periodical issued west of New York City sustained a claim to a regular issue of so many as 40,000 copies. In this issue is also to be noted a second step towards defining what circulation is. It was said to be:

"The bona fide regular edition at the time of making the report."

In 1877 a growing disposition on the part of publishers to concede the right of advertisers "to see what they buy before they buy it" was noted.

In the issue of the Directory for 1879 a new system of circulation rating was inaugurated. In the preface for the January issue we may read:

In 1870, when it was first decided to give information on this subject, the editor applied to proprietors of newspapers for circulation statements, and inserted before the figures furnished the word "claims." After a time objections were urged against this word, and to avoid its use, publishers offered to prove reports by affidavits and otherwise. Many, however, were satisfied with the word as used, and argued that one claim was as good as another, set up proprietary pretensions. It finally became evident that if the book was to become an authority the "claimed" circulations would have to be excluded. Thereafterwards those newspapers whose proprietors offered proof had their circulation figures given positively, without any preliminary word; in other cases the figures were followed by the word "estimated."

In the course of a year or two "estimated" became as objectionable as the other, and newspaper publishers frequently asked that it be omitted. To this request, the response was uniformly made that the word could only be omitted in those cases where an offer to prove its correctness accompanied the publisher's circulation statement when given. This position also gave offense to many. It was a system introduced for the protection of honest publishers against unscrupulous neighbors, and proved good when adopted, but it finally gave rise to so much dissatisfaction that it was abandoned.

The new system consisted of the use of letter ratings instead of Arabic figures. For instance, "K" was explained to mean not exceeding five hundred. "K1" meant exceeding five hundred. "A" meant not exceeding one hundred thousand and "A1" exceeding one hundred thousand. The ratings in Arabic figures were discontinued absolutely.

In 1880 circulation ratings were by letter, and it was stated that:

From publishers who furnish information upon which the report of circulation may be based, a memorandum is asked of the issues for each number of the paper for the three preceding months.

In the year 1881 publishers of newspapers who furnished information upon which the report of circulation might be based, were asked for a memorandum of the actual issues for each number of the paper for the three preceding months, and each publisher sending such a report was asked to make it as definite and exact, as to dates and figures, as he would wish to acquire from a rival publisher.—were a comparison, based upon the two reports, to be instituted between the two papers.

In the years 1882, 1883 and 1884, no change in the system of rating circulations appears to have been made, and in 1885 the circulation ratings were still based upon a report covering the issues for three months; but in that issue circulation ratings in Arabic figures were again accorded under conditions set forth in the preface, as follows:

A proposal was made to every publisher to give his exact circulation (in addition to the usual rating by letters.) provided a statement was furnished of the actual number of each issue for the full year and the average issue for the same period. It was not expected that any large number of papers would avail themselves of the privilege of furnishing such a report, but it was offered, because some publishers were anxious, to show to the public the exact facts concerning their circulation, and to such the method of rating by letters, which had been found best for the majority, was unsatisfactory. Comparatively few publishers found themselves in possession of such memoranda as would admit of making up the detailed report for so long a time as a full year, and the actual number who responded with complete data is one hundred and five, but from the correspondence which has been brought out, it was found that the plan is regarded with favor.

In the Directory for 1886 the method of circulation rating was the same as in the preceding year, but papers that furnished a statement of actual issues for a full year had the letter rating followed by a sentence in italic type of which the following, taken from the record of the Chicago News, is an example:

☞ Actual average circulation for one year preceding January 1, 1886, as per statement on file at the office of the American Newspaper Directory—daily, 131,992; weekly, 60,109 copies.

This matter was put in, without any charge, for every paper that furnished the requisite information.

In the Directory for 1887, the nineteenth year of its publication, the method of rating circulations by letters was continued, together with the privilege of having the circulation stated in Arabic figures if a report was furnished showing actual issues for a full year, and in this issue prominence was given to the following:

Circulation is not the only element of value. In fixing the value of advertising space in any particular journal, the first question to be considered is the number of copies issued; next, the character or quality of the circulation. A well-printed paper is worth more than one badly printed; an influential journal carries more weight than one without reputation. A paper which habitually charges high prices for its advertising, thereby making its columns exclusive, will have fewer and, as a rule, a better class of advertisements, and is worth something more on that account. The value in all these considerations is recognized, but exactly how much each one is to be considered becomes a question of judgment.

In the preface of the Directory for 1888, its twentieth year, is given a lengthy but interesting sketch of the plan of revision:

The work was begun on the 20th of October last, and on that date an application for a report was made to the publishers of such of the 15,420 papers named in the Directory for 1887, as were known to still exist. These applications were sent in sealed envelopes, accompanied by information concerning the points upon which the editor wished to be enlightened, together with an addressed post-paid envelope in which it was desired that the reply should be returned.

Within thirty days one-third of these publishers (5,522 to be exact) had made some sort of an answer, and of these one-eighth, (711) contained a circulation report which was satisfactory: a quarter (1,419) contained reports which, though not satisfactory, bore evidence that further correspondence on the subject of circulation would produce no more satisfactory result:—showed, in fact, that the omission to send a report on that point was intentional. To the remaining five-eighths of those who responded, (3,392) a duplicate of the application of October 20 was at once mailed, together with a printed notice calling special attention to the omission and expressing a hope that the request for information would be acceded to.

On the 19th of November, it appearing that there were still 8,848 newspaper offices which had omitted to make any response whatever to the communication of October 20th; there was mailed, on that day, a communication to each of these, calling attention to the oversight: and between November 19th and December 31st there were received 281 reports which were such as had been asked for, 136 which were not, but of a class which did not invite further correspondence, and 860 instances where a report of the editions printed was seemingly omitted by accident. To each of the last class, a third application was at once mailed. It will be perceived that to the 8,848 duplicate applications mailed in November only 1,277 (only one in seven) brought a reply of any sort.

Among the other methods pursued to get at the information needed the following was one of the most effective.

In every town of such importance as to support one or more daily papers a pressman was appealed to to give his aid; being furnished with a list of the papers issued in his town, together with their circulation ratings. He was specially asked to direct attention to any paper which could sustain a claim to a higher rating than had been last accorded; and a suitable compensation was promised for the service to be performed. The responses to this application were very satisfactory; showing much reliable knowledge, communicated with willingness and not likely to be warped by jealousy, there being no conflict of interest.

Whenever a publisher, in his correspondence, claimed to know that the Directory ratings were not as correct as they should be, he was furnished with a list of all the publications in his town, State, or of the class to which he belonged with the ratings, and was asked to return the list after examining it and marking a plus (+) mark against every paper rated too low, and a minus (—) mark against every one that, in his opinion, was marked too high. A record of these marks was before the editor of the Directory when fixing every rating, and although they were never taken as conclusive evidence they did, as many times, carry a good deal of weight.

It was by this issue that the bull's-eye (◉◉), or so-called gold marks first had a place.

* * *

In this issue, there were fully a thousand papers that had made such definite circulation statements as carried conviction of their accuracy, and the publishers of the Directory, in the preface of the book, offered a reward of a hundred dollars in cash to be paid for each circulation rating based on such a report that should be proved false. It was further stated, in the preface, that:

DEFINITE STATEMENTS ARE GENERALLY TRUTHFUL.

The notion that publishers habitually make statements of circulation which fears will not verify is one commonly held; but the experience of operating the Directory for twenty years teaches that the truth of the assertion to the effect is more accurate than not. It may have been noticed by those who carefully observe such matters, that it is not common for the ordinary publisher to make a statement of his actual edition which can be called definite. When he does meet the question squarely, he may almost always be relied upon to tell the absolute truth.

Concerning the reluctance on the part of newspapers to convey the sort of information the Directory sought, the preface said:

WHY SOME PUBLISHERS MAKE NO STATEMENT.

Many publishers of respectable and high-class journals, in reply to an inquiry, "Why don't you make a statement of what your actual issue is?" answer plainly and truthfully, "Because people think we print more than we do. If we make any statement we shall tell the truth: we prefer therefore to make none."

In the twenty years that the Directory has been issued, this is the first time it has been possible to report that so many as one publisher out of every hundred has furnished a statement of his issue for a full year; for this year one out of every thirty-eight has done so. A statement covering a period of three months has never been received from as many as one publisher out of 500; and never has any statement whatever—any one or all in the application for a copy—been made by as many as one out of the publishers of newspapers until this year, when the report actually has reached eight thousand.

In another place in the preface the following significant paragraph here place:

"ABOUT."

In considering a publisher's statement about his issue, the word "about" has to be weighed very seriously. It covers a multitude of sins, and this being the case, it is often considered against the publisher when, and he knows it, quite good faith. For a dishonest publisher it is a convenient word; for an honest, a dangerous one.

It is probable that a percentage of publishers make it a business principle not to know the exact actual editions of the papers which they issue, and do not, in fact, know. Of course there are those who, in consideration for advertisers of the paper, when making a statement of the edition according to their best knowledge and belief. It may drift into statements calculated to mislead an inquiry who does not carefully weigh the literal meaning of the words adjusment to him in answer to his question, what wonder if novice and employees sometimes see more positive terms and larger figures than the principal would actually authorize.

In this issue there is found a more comprehensive definition of what is meant by circulation. It is as follows:

HOW MANY COPIES?

By the inquiry as often propounded to a publisher: "What is your circulation?" it is intended to ask: "How many complete copies do you print?" The number of copies printed is the basis of what is in the inquirer's mind. What is done with the completed copies is a matter to be considered in fixing the value of the circulation. "How many copies do you print?" is the first question to be asked. If that is not squarely answered, it is not worth while to pursue the inquiry, and to do so is to risk being deceived. When the preliminary question has been frankly and truthfully answered the inquirer stands on solid ground and may then ask as many more questions as he wishes; and to all others, answers come with comparative readiness. It is not the number the publisher is "going" to print that is wanted, but the number he has printed: for although the future cannot absolutely be foretold by the past, there is no other method of forecasting it which in reliability can compete with a comparison with the past. What a man or a newspaper has done they may do again, but what a man or a newspaper thinks is going to be done is not so likely to take place. Some of the most promising journalistic successes come to a sudden end every year.

Some unsatisfactory sorts of circulation statements are specified, as follows:

UNSATISFACTORY STATEMENTS.

Statements of circulation which are of any one of the following sorts are something less than satisfactory. Those which are signed with a hand-stamp or type-writer, with nothing to indicate who applied the imprint: statements signed with the firm name per some initial or initials of a person not known.

Statements given in even hundreds, thousands, or tens of thousands, are always understood to represent the extreme to which the issue has at some time leaped. Round figures are never understood to indicate the exact truth. If a paper prints an even round number of copies every issue its publisher is wasteful; no paper has exactly the same call for every issue unless it is to be given away or thrown away.

Many an honest publisher will squarely decline to answer any question asked him about the circulation of his paper. His reasons are doubtless good; but BEWARE always of the man who, while declining to tell what is asked, insists upon giving a considerable amount of other and different information. The information volunteered is likely to have been carefully studied up because more likely to help the paper than the cold fact of the number of copies issued would be.

WILL NOT GIVE WHAT IS ASKED FOR, BUT WILL GIVE SOMETHING ELSE.

The following are samples of dozens of communications which come to the Directory office in answer to the application for a statement of actual issues:

"We will show you the mailing list."

"Will exhibit postoffice receipts."

"You may freely enter our pressroom and count the edition."

"Will refer you to a newsdealer who sells the papers."

"Will show you paper bills."

Offers of this sort are indications of good faith when accompanying a plain answer to the question which has been asked; but when the offer is made as above, and no other answer given to the inquiry from the Directory office, the compiler of that work is liable to give credence to warnings which reach him from other newspaper offices, of which the following are actual examples:

"Open subscription books, open pressroom, etc., amount to nothing. We know a man who paid several hundred dollars to find out that a subscription list could be kept for inspection; and not one advertiser in ten could correctly estimate an edition, though he sat in the pressroom all day."

"The paper dealer can undoubtedly tell how much paper he has sold, but how can he tell what was done with it?"

"An affidavit saying that the circulation of the paper is now so and so is of no value, as one big edition will excuse the conscience of the deponent. For that matter, an affidavit to circulation, no matter how false, if not made in giving evidence in a court of record, is not perjury in law: and the man who will deliberately lie about circulation will make a false affidavit."

Most of the discredit heaped upon publishers' statements of circulation comes from other publishers. It is much easier to convince an advertiser that a certain paper has an enormous issue than it is to convey the same conviction to a rival publisher.

CIRCULATION IS BY NO MEANS THE ONLY ELEMENT OF VALUE.

Circulation is by no means the only element of newspaper value; but because one copy of a paper is worth five times as much as one copy of a neighbor's paper, that is no reason why it should not be told how many copies are actually printed, for although the advertiser may concur on the question of comparative value, he may conclude, from the reticence he discovers, that the other paper issues ten times as many and is consequently worth twice as much; while the fact may be that the disparity between the two issues, although large, is nothing like so great as he supposes.

A publisher writes:

"Your rating might be much improved by giving the character of circulation, upon which, according to our notion, the whole value of advertising depends. The headline of your circulation states exceeding 150,000, the smallest exceeding 250. Now, our idea is that possibly the latter may be worth much more than the former in an advertising way for a certain line. We made a trial at one time by advertising in a paper that we know to have a circulation of 300,000 and advertised in another with not more than 10,000. The 10,000 served us much better than the larger, and we do not know that he got any business at all from the Sheet."

Then follows a lengthy and comprehensive review of the result of twenty years of effort in ascertaining and proclaiming newspaper circulations; as follows:

In issuing the initial volume of the American Newspaper Directory, in the year 1869, the publishers were the first to undertake to ascertain and tabulate the actual circulations of the newspapers. As this volume is the twenty-fifth annual appearance, the publishers have taken the occasion to prepare an exhaustive analysis of the circulation reports, for the purpose of exhibiting a comprehensive view of the result of its endeavors, thereby furnishing data for an intelligent discussion of the comparative accuracy or inaccuracy of the compilation, such as will tend to satisfy those who are interested.

A careful revision of all the circulation ratings revealed the following interesting conditions:

There were 16,319 different publications catalogued.

The total output for a single issue of these 16,319 different publications was [illegible] copies and the average, which was 1,879 copies. Of the entire 16,319 publications more than two-thirds issued less than 1,000 copies.

Of the 16,319 publications issuing a total of [illegible] copies, 15 were credited with a total issue of [illegible] copies, or nearly a quarter of the total issue of the 16,319 publications, while 12,867 papers had a total issue of only [illegible] copies, consequently the advertiser using less than 200 papers of the first sort reached about as many people as could be reached by through over 12,000 of the first named.

A consideration of this fact makes it plain that papers of small issue, in the price for advertising space in proportion to circulation, cannot compete with those of large issue. With the former, the typesetting is an important factor to be considered and advertising space a secondary consideration; while with the paper of largest issue typesetting goes for nothing and space counts for everything.

Further calculations revealed that:

New York prints more than a quarter of all the periodicals which are sold, and Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio print more than another quarter of all, and in combined circulation exceed by a few copies the aggregate emanating from the Empire State.

The largest average circulation was reached by the papers of the State of Maine, the cheap monthlies published at Augusta bringing up the figures. New York stood second, and Nevada was at the foot of the list, with Mississippi but one step above it.

In preparing for the annual revision of the Directory for 1889 it was found possible to divide the newspapers into five classes; class one, consisting of papers which had given a satisfactory circulation report for the last issue of the Directory; class two, consisting of papers which made a report for the last issue of the Directory which was not so exact and definite as to make it entirely satisfactory; class three, consisting of papers which had favored the publishers of the Directory with some aid at the time of the last revision but had refrained from communicating any information at all upon the subject of their own circulation; class four, consisting of papers which at the time of the last revision had ignored applications and given no information or aid whatever. In addition to these there were about 2,000 papers; the fifth class, composed of new papers, the descriptions of which appeared for the first time in the Directory for 1888, and to which, in accordance with the plan of the book, no circulation rating had been accorded.

For the purpose of making it impossible to misunderstand what sort of a circulation statement was most desired, examples of actual statement which had been received and accepted as satisfactory were, this year, made a part of the application for information.

To every paper of the first class above referred to the following communication was inclosed; printed on a

BLUE SLIP.

Last year the paper to which this is addressed sent a circulation report which was very satisfactory; and it is hoped that the report for this year will be equally so.

To every paper of the second class the following communication was inclosed: printed on a YELLOW SLIP.

Last year the circulation report received from the paper to which this is addressed did not conform to the sample statement sent; in fact, was not so exact and definite as to make it entirely satisfactory to the editor in charge of the compilation of the Directory: a hope is hereby expressed that the fault complained of last year will not be noted in the report which shall be sent in answer to this application.

To every paper of the third class the following communication was enclosed: printed on a

GREEN SLIP.

Last year the paper to which this is addressed furnished the Directory with some other information, but was silent on the subject of a circulation report: it is specially hoped that this will not be the case this year.

To every paper of the fourth class the following communication was enclosed: printed on a RED SLIP.

Last year the publishers of the Directory were not so fortunate as to be favored by the paper to which this is addressed with any report of any sort to aid them in the prosecution of their work. They wish to express the earnest hope that their application may not again be treated with so much neglect.

To every publisher in every State there was also enclosed a complete catalogue of all the papers issued in that State, as recorded in the last issue of the American Newspaper Directory: together with the circulation rating accorded to each: and this catalogue was accompanied by the following request:

If you are willing to examine this list in the light of the local knowledge which you possess and mark with a plus mark (+) any paper which you believe can sustain a claim to a higher circulation rating than that here accorded it, please do so, and return the list, so marked (signed and dated for indentification).

The applications for information, which have been here described in detail, were mailed from the New York Postoffice on Saturday, November 10, 1888. There were 15,000 of them. Each envelope contained eight separate circulars or pieces. Some of the inclosures were necessarily different for each State and for each class. It required the exercise of great care to insure the inclosure of the Blue, the Yellow, the Green and the Red Slips to the right papers. The preparation of the needed inclosures for these 15,000 envelopes involved the printing of 252 different forms of circulars.

Twenty years of experience in publishing the Directory had shown that publishers who fail to respond do not do so from accident or inadvertence, but from deliberate intention; also that a failure to give a detailed circulation report is not likely to be remedied by any correspondence no matter how persistently the same may be maintained.

This view having been expressed in the application of November 10th, and a statement there made that no second application would be sent, it was not this year necessary to communicate with any publisher a second time unless he asked a question which required an answer.

The percentage of answers sent in this year to the application for a report was larger than on any previous occasion.

By actual count it is found that a report of actual issues for a full year have been furnished for 424 publications, 1,149 have given a detailed report of actual issues for a period of three months or more, from 4,902 the information, concerning circulation, was not in detail or in some way failed to be satisfactory, and from 2,476 assistance was furnished on other points, but the circulation question was significantly ignored.

It would appear that, although furnished with a stamped addressed envelope for a reply, nearly 7,000 publishers failed to make any response whatever.

In the preface to the Directory for 1890, its twenty-second year, it is stated that:

By actual count it is found that a report of actual issues for a full year have been furnished for 320 publications, 1,133 have given a detailed report of actual issues for a period of three months or more, from 4,228 the information concerning circulation in some way failed to be satisfactory, and from 829 assistance was furnished on other points, but the circulation question was ignored.

The practice of guaranteeing the accuracy of all circulation reports made out in due form, and signed and dated, inaugurated in a previous year, was continued this year, and one delinquent was discovered. In this connection a further reward was offered as follows:

It has sometimes been asserted that statements made in detail and properly signed and dated have not contained full evidence at the office of the Directory. For the purpose of testing the sincerity of such charges the publishers of the Directory now offer a reward of $25 for every case where it can be shown that a publisher sent in a true detailed statement, duly signed and dated, showing a period of three months or more, and the editor of the Directory failed or was too busy to manifestate therewith.

For the purpose of indicating which papers had responded to the application for a report, and the nature of the response, the circulation ratings were this year supplemented by one, two or three asterisks: *  , explained as follows:

* Indicates the paper was listed from last year and allied on the subject of circulation.

 Some information was given about circulation but not in so satisfactory a form as to exclude.

 That a complete statement of circulation was furnished for three months or more, duly signed and dated. The accuracy of these ratings is guaranteed.

The prefixes for 1893 indicate no special feature differing from preceding issues.

In the preface to the Directory for 1892, the twenty-fourth year, there again appeared a resume of the Directory methods for the twenty-three preceding years, from which the following extracts appear to be of interest:

In the first volume of the American Newspaper Directory, issued in 1869, an effort was first made to rate the circulation of American periodicals. Not every paper was rated however. An examination will show that in the examples of more than hundreds of them no reference to circulation was made. Where a rating was given it was generally qualified with the word "claims." Sometimes the word "about" was substituted. If the information upon which the rating was based was pretty definite and positive the figures appear to have been given without the qualifying word.

In 1871, under the heading of "Explanations," the Directory states: "When a willingness to make such a circulation has been expressed, the figures are given unqualifiedly. In the absence of a willingness to verify the statement, the word 'claims' prefixes the circulation figures, but (unwisely as some publishers object to the use of the word 'claims') the word 'about' is substituted in such cases and is also used in all cases where the publishers of the Directory had to gather that information from outside sources."

In 1873, every publisher was asked to state how many copies of each edition of his newspaper were printed for the first issue in the current month, and for the first issue in each of the two preceding months. The sum of these issues, divided by three, was then set down as the actual circulation. This system was continued for five or six years. Every publisher was asked if he was willing to verify his circulation statement by affidavit. If he filled up the blank properly his statement was accepted, unless challenged by some one claiming to have other information. In such a case the publisher was communicated with. If he furnished the affidavit and gave information as was called for, his report was then accepted and a danger was affixed to the circulation figures indicating that an affidavit was on file at the office. If, on the contrary, he ignored the request, his figures were generally set down and an asterisk affixed to the rating, showing that the publisher had claimed more, but neglected to furnish proof when called upon. The practice consisting in a willingness to make affidavit to a statement of circulation proved to be about as satisfactory to publishers as the prevailed and was said to be in a hole. It made so much trouble that its use was finally abandoned.

In 1882 a new system was introduced. The papers were divided into classes, or sets, represented by letters, the meaning of each letter being explained by a key. Class "A" had papers publishing in the neighborhood of 500; class "I" in the neighborhood of 1,000. Other letters represented publications seeing in the neighborhood of 1,500, 2,000, 2,500, 3,000, 4,000, 5,000, 6,000, 7,000, 8,000, 9,000, 10,000, 15,000, 20,000, 25,000, 30,000, 40,000, 50,000, 60,000, 70,000, 80,000, 90,000, 100,000, 150,000, 200,000, 250,000, 300,000, 400,000, 500,000, 600,000, 700,000, 800,000, 900,000, 1,000,000. A blank statement of actual issues covering a period of three months was left that was asked for, and every publisher was allowed to make it up in his own way, the only point insisted upon being that the statement should be verified, and that the statement should be signed with a pen and dated by some one whose connection with the paper should be stated or apparent. The new system was rather satisfactory, but as time went on critics remarked that a paper printing 550 copies had the same rating as another printing 700; so, too, a paper printing 1,000 was in the same class with one printing 16,000 copies. To obviate this difficulty the number of classes was doubled in the Directory of 1886, and ratings were thereby made somewhat more definite. About this time, in response to a suggestion from a publisher, a practice was adopted of printing an italic statement of the actual average circulation for a whole year, whenever the publisher choose to prepare and furnish such a statement in detail.

In 1888, while preparing matter to be used as a preface in the Directory for that year, attention was directed to the curious fact that out of 13,880 applications sent out in sealed envelopes, asking information from publishers, there were received in thirty days only 5,522 answers of any kind, and that among these about one-eighth (711) contained satisfactory circulation reports; 1,419 of them bore evidence that the omission to send a circulation report was an intentional one; and 3,392 made no reference whatever to the question of circulation; to these a second notice was sent calling attention to the omission. Two months after the original inquiry had been mailed it was found that 8,848 papers had omitted to make any response to the communication, although each inquiry contained an addressed post-paid envelope for a reply. A new communication was thereupon sent to these 8,848 publications calling attention to the oversight. Within the next six weeks there were received 281 reports which were such as had been asked for, 136 which showed that no satisfactory report would be given, and 860 from which a report of the editions printed was seemingly omitted by accident. To each of the last class a third application was promptly made. A careful examination finally exhibited the fact that out of the 8,848 papers to which a second application was made, only one in seven ever responded in any way.

These facts were so interesting that a plan was thereupon adopted for exhibiting them. In the Directory for that year all circulation ratings, based upon a statement duly signed, were marked with three asterisks. A paper which had given some information, although not definite and satisfactory, was marked with two asterisks. Raings made up without any information from the publisher were marked with one asterisk, and the ratings of papers which had not responded at all were unmarked. About 1,000 papers received the distinguishing mark of the three asterisks. A careful consideration of the quality of these 1,000 reports led the publishers of the Directory to the conclusion that they were almost without exception, absolutely true. So much confidence did they repose in the conclusion arrived at that they thereupon decided to announce a reward of $100 for each instance where a paper so marked should be shown to have secured the rating by an untruthful report. That offer of a reward has been continued in each edition since, and the money has been paid in the case of the Waukegan (Ill.) Gazette, in 1888; the Madison (Wis.) Skandinavisk Tribune, in 1889, and the Prospect (O.) Advance, in 1891.

For four years (1888-89-90-91) a careful analysis of the circulation ratings of the American Newspaper Directory was prepared and printed. Taking the rating of each class at its minimum the total output for 1891 was found to be more than four thousand million, or more than sufficient to place sixty publications a year in the hands of every living human being, including the Indian, the pauper, the criminal and the child just born. Counting five persons for each family the grand total was almost sufficient to give to every family a newspaper of some sort for every day in the year. The conclusion was irresistible that the circulation ratings in the American Newspaper Directory were too high, and a new departure was, therefore, inaugurated.

The fact that only one newspaper in nineteen made a practice of sending what could be called a definite statement of actual issues, taken in connection with the apparent proof adduced, that the total of all the Directory ratings amounted to an impossible figure, made it appear plain that the reasons why publishers refrained from sending true and definite statements were to be found in the fact that by refraining from sending such statements they received higher ratings than would be accorded were the actual editions made known.

The condition outlined in the preface, and the conclusion therefrom arrived at, led to a more careful revision of circulation ratings accorded to papers from which no satisfactory circulation statement was forthcoming. The result of these efforts, together with the agitation of the subject in PRINTERS' INK, a weekly journal for advertisers, produced a largely increased number of circulation statements that were entirely satisfactory—in fact they were about five times as numerous as for any previous year.

In this edition space was given to the following appeal to users of the Directory:

Purchasers of the American Newspaper Directory, when they hear assertions made by agents and canvassers that a paper is not correctly rated, are requested to remind them that all the publisher has to do to secure a rating in exact accordance with his own claim was to send in a signed statement of actual issues. The liability of having an untruthful statement detected may possibly have sometimes deterred a publisher from sending a fraudulent report, but without doubt the impression generally prevailing that a successful paper has a larger circulation than it does have in fact, is the principal cause that restrains honest publishers from making any statement at all. It is probable that the circulation ratings in this issue of the American Newspaper Directory are more nearly correct than those that have appeared in any of its previous twenty-three yearly issues.

In the Directory for 1893, its twenty-fifth year, no special variation from previous usage is noted.

At the time of issuing the Directory for 1894 the advertising agency so long conducted by the firm of Geo. P. Rowell & Co., had become a corporation, designated as the Geo. P. Rowell Advertising Company. This corporation had not acquired the copyright of the American Newspaper Directory, which continued to be issued by Mr. Geo. P. Rowell as sole owner, but the business was conducted under the old firm name of Geo. P. Rowell & Co.

The preface in this issue contained the announcement that:

Circulation ratings accorded in this book represent the average issue of the publication for the year preceding the date of the report.

In this issue there was also published for the first time, the plan of revision, wherein were set forth all the rules that had from time to time been adopted for dealing with the numerous puzzling questions that arise in the conduct of such a work.

In the preface of the Directory for 1895, the twenty-seventh year of its publication, it is stated:

During the compilation of the present issue a report of some kind was received from 12,505 publications, considerably more than one-half of the entire number published—a much larger percentage than ever before. Reports from 4,459 publications gave actual circulation figures covering the full year preceding, and each one of these is rated in Arabic figures in accordance with the report, the correctness of such figures being guaranteed under a forfeiture of $100. It is gratifying to note that these guaranteed ratings increase in number each year. Formerly only one report in twenty was of this kind, now it is one in three. Reports from 3,087 were not sufficiently definite to enable the editor to arrive at the exact issues for a year, and the circulation in each of these cases is indicated by a letter rating.

In the present Directory a valuable feature has been admitted, giving publishers an opportunity to state, in their own words and on their own responsibility, whatever they have to say about their publications, immediately following the technical description of their papers. All such notices are preceded by the word "Advertisement." Not very long ago an offer of five thousand dollars was made by a New York publisher for a similar notice, and refused at the office of the Directory. The privilege is now granted to all publishers alike for a nominal sum.

Mr. H. Z. Osborne, President of the Evening Express Company, of Los Angeles, California when availing himself of the opportunity offered, wrote as follows: "We inclose you a sixty-word statement of ten lines to insert in the column with and following the description of our paper in the American Newspaper Directory, in accordance with your circular, at ten dollars, with ten per cent off. We inclose our check for nine dollars to pay for the same. We think that this is an excellent plan of advertising and predict that you will find it very profitable. A statement which bears upon its face the evidence of truth, immediately following the catalogue description of the paper is, in our opinion, more valuable than a page advertisement in some other portion of the Directory."

In the edition for 1896 no new feature is noted; but in 1897, the twenty-ninth year of the publication, the practice of issuing the Directory quarterly—in March, June, September and December was resumed, and an important change was made in the plan of the circulation ratings that relieved the Directory editor of a great deal of work which it had been found could not in the nature of things result in a benefit commensurate with its cost. In previous issues the letters "L," "K," and "J" had been used to represent circulations exceeding 100, 400 and 800, and as in practice it was found that a general advertiser paid about as much for advertising space in papers of one of these classes as for another they were consolidated under the logotype letter rating of "JKL." The matter was disposed of in the preface as follows:

The method adopted for according circulation ratings is explained in detail on inside of first cover page. The papers rated "JKL" are credited with regular issues exceeding one hundred and falling below one thousand copies. One thousand being the general advertiser's unit of value. These small papers will be dealt with mainly by local advertisers, who will form their own opinion of the precise issue and consequent worth. To the general advertiser papers of less than a thousand issues are not of much account, because the cost of watching contracts and keeping accounts is a considerable item, which, added to the lowest obtainable price, generally makes it too dear to be profitable.

On another page it is stated:

It will be a great day for the newspaper publisher and the advertiser when the former will tell the latter just how many copies his announcement will appear in. The latter will then have to conduct his negotiation on the theory that he is dealing with an honest man. An honest man, printing a class paper with twenty-five hundred subscribers, can get more advertising at twenty-five cents a line than can be secured at half that price by a lying competitor who gives away five thousand copies and says his average issue is ten thousand. There is nothing that sets a newspaper man upon so high a pedestal, in the eyes of an advertiser, as to have him show circulation figures which fall below what the advertiser supposed the edition to be. No power on earth can keep that advertiser out of that paper after that. He thinks each one of those few subscribers is worth five hundred secured by a competitor, who, after all, may not have them.

From the June issue of the Directory for 1897 the re-cataloguing of the papers by counties was discontinued and in its stead was substituted a smaller catalogue by States from which was omitted all papers not supposed to print so many as 1,000 copies. The practice of distributing advertising orders by counties had become obsolete, advertisers finding railroad lines much more to the point than outlines of counties that meant comparatively little, and that with the decreased price of paper and the great circulations consequent thereupon there was little use for papers printing less than a thousand copies, except by local merchants and local interests.

In the December issue for 1897 one may read the following paragraphs:

There are three classes of newspaper publishers; first, those who believe an advertiser is entitled to know their circulation and are willing that he should; and to take any and every step desirable for accomplishing the purpose; second, those who wish to have an advertiser think that they wish to have their circulation known, but are determined to avoid that result by every means possible; third, those who believe that their circulation is a private matter and concerns no one but themselves, and that inquiries concerning it are impertinence. Publishers of the first and third classes are honest men, but those of the second class are not. Every publisher who reads this knows in which class he belongs.—PRINTERS' INK, Oct. 13.

The following advertisement has been appearing regularly in PRINTERS' INK for some time past, and no single answer has it thus far elicited:

WANTED—The address of a newspaper publisher who keeps a record of his issues and is willing to make the exact figures public, and who has at any time had any trouble or difficulty about securing their publication in the American Newspaper Directory, without the expenditure of a cent for advertising in the Directory, or for any other item beyond a postage stamp on the envelope that conveyed by mail his true statement bearing date and signature. Address, with full particulars, PRINTERS' INK, 10 Spruce St., N. Y. City.

The reason why no names are obtainable of honest publishers who have cause of complaint against the American Newspaper Directory is simply that THERE ARE NONE.

It was also in the Directory for 1897 that the use of what have since come to be called "the doubt marks" was begun. Something of the sort appeared to be needed since the practice had been abandoned of paying $100 reward for the discovery of an untruthful circulation report; these marks were as explained below:

The accuracy of this rating has been questioned by one or more persons who claim to have facilities for knowing the facts.

The accuracy of this rating has been questioned by one or more persons who claim to have facilities for knowing the facts, and it is feared that the doubts expressed do rest upon a substantial foundation.

The editor of the American Newspaper Directory has offered to verify the correctness of a circulation statement furnished by this paper, provided the publisher of the paper would agree to place the necessary facilities at his disposal. It was stipulated that the verification should be without cost to the publisher of the paper, but to this offer the publisher's response was not such as to remove the impression of doubt that had been cast on the accuracy of the statement furnished.

It was in the March issue of the Directory for 1898 that use was made for the first time of what has come to be known as the "Z" rating. It was applied to a paper whose circulation report fell short of being satisfactory after the publisher had had his attention directed to the fault and had failed to correct it. Faults dealt with under this heading were divided into twelve classes, as follows:

1. It was not signed.
2. It was not dated.
3. It failed to convey the necessary information.
4. It was not given with sufficient attention to detail.
5. It did not specify the time supposed to be covered by the report.
6. It did not cover the issues for a full year.
7. It was signed with a hand-stamp.
8. It was signed by some person whose authority to sign was not explained or known.
9. It was signed by an initial or by initials only.
10. It was not given in such a way as would make it possible to hold any one responsible for the information it purported to give, should it afterward be proven untrue.
11. It failed to strike an average for the period covered in detail, and thereby made it impossible to quote the figures as having been sworn to by the publisher of the paper.
12. It failed to clearly state what was meant by the word "circulation."

THE "Y" RATING.

In the quarterly issue of the Directory for June, 1898, the so-called "Y" rating was first introduced, its meaning being explained as follows:

Its significance will be to direct attention to the circumstances that a recent circulation statement has not been furnished from the office of the paper, and the consequent possibility that the withholding of recent information arises from the circumstance that the last circulation rating accorded to the paper is higher than a new statement would warrant, and the consequent greater value to the publisher of an old rating, which may or may not have been correct, over a new rating which, if correct and up-to-date, would be less favorable.

In the quarterly issue for December, 1898, the following offer was conspicuously printed:

A copy of the next issue of the American Newspaper Directory will be presented to the first person who shall prove that any paper in this edition credited with a circulation rating by letter is actually entitled to a higher letter rating. The man who proves that two papers are underrated will get two books. If he finds a hundred underrated he may have a hundred books, and so on.

This identical proposition was made, by postal card, October 5, 1898, to every newspaper in this book credited with a circulation rating by letter, and one month later, at the time when this edition went to press, only six instances of an underrating had been discovered. Six out of seven thousand is not very many.

From the preface of the March issue for 1899 one may read as follows:

From 1889 to 1896 inclusive, a period of nine years, the accuracy of circulation ratings in the American Newspaper Directory was guaranteed by its publisher and a reward of $100 was paid to the first person who proved that a circulation rating, in actual figures based upon a statement received from its publisher, was not true as given. This system of guarantee was discontinued in 1897, after between three and four thousand dollars had been paid out in forfeits, because nine years of experience had made it plain that newspaper publishers were not interested to counteract The Directory in its efforts and were positively opposed to them. Even those newspaper men who sent in figures that were guaranteed appeared as a general rule to feel as though freed from a fearful nightmare after the guarantee was withdrawn. On the other hand, however, there is beginning to appear a class of publishers who desire the maintenance of the guaranty system and express a willingness to assume a share of the burden it entails.

Having given the application of these due considerations, the editor of the Directory has decided to renew the guaranty, beginning with this issue of the Directory, and attach a guaranty clause in the case of every circulation rating based upon a satisfactory statement, provided the said statement is accompanied by a deposit of one hundred dollars in actual cash, to be held indefinitely by The Directory publisher. The guaranty is to be continued year after year, so long as it is deemed, or until the correctness of the rating has been successfully assailed. In this edition only one publisher has availed himself of the guaranty. See Minneapolis, Minn., Tribune.

In the preface of the March quarterly issue of the Directory for 1900 one may read as follows:

Any publisher of a newspaper entitled to a higher circulation rating than is accorded in this book knows that it was his privilege to have his exact figures inserted had he been willing to furnish them, and that it is still his privilege to furnish the requisite information and thereby secure a correct rating in the next issue of the book, which comes out three months later. Where a publisher is unwilling to supply the requisite information, the experience of the editor of the Directory has taught him that it is always for a reason more satisfactory to the publisher than it would be to an advertiser who is thinking of using the advertising columns of the paper.

Special attention is called to the system of circulation ratings adopted by this Directory in the case of papers of over one thousand circulation, where there is given a record of ratings for a series of years past, thus enabling the users of the Directory to judge the present and probable future of a paper by noting what its past has been.

It having often been asserted that the circulation rating accorded to a newspaper was influenced by the fact that the newspaper did or did not order a paid advertisement in the Directory, and that circulation rose and fell according as the paper did or failed to have an advertisement in the book; it was decided in 1895 to leave the circulation ratings in the book, from year to year, so that a user of the book might note these fluctuations of ratings if they did in fact occur as charged. This plan has now been pursued for a period of ten years and seems to reveal that some papers furnish the information, upon which a circulation rating may be based, with absolute regularity; and others if they give any information at all uniformly fall short of making it so definite as to be useful to the Directory editor. Examples of papers of each sort may be mentioned as follows:

In Boston the Transcript generally gives definite information while the Herald rarely or never does.

In Washington the Star always gives definite information while the Post never does.

In Indianapolis the News always gives definite information while the Sentinel rarely or never does.

In Chicago the News always gives definite information while the Tribune never does.

In New York the Post generally gives definite information while the Brooklyn Eagle rarely or never does.

McClure's Magazine generally gives definite information while the Century never does.

An examination of any issue of the Directory put forth since 1896 exhibits the tendency of each and every publisher either to tell or to conceal his circulation, and it is one that is pretty persistent. Still the number that are straightforward on this point becomes greater every year.

On page fifteen of the issue of the Directory for 1901, its thirty-third year, one may read:

The editor of the American Newspaper Directory keeps on file a mass of information gathered from year to year concerning the circulation and character of American newspapers. He has always at hand, in chronological order, accessible at a moment's notice, a conveniently arranged mass of interesting documents, statements, pamphlets and circulation figures, going to show what is claimed for a paper by its owners or asserted of it by its enemies and friends. By the aid of these and his familiarity with the subject it is always possible to pass the history of the paper in rapid review and comprehend and measure the claims set up concerning its value to advertisers. He is often in a position to tell about a specified publication just what an advertiser would very much like to know.

In this issue is also set forth the latest definition of what is meant by the word circulation. It is the average edition printed within a year that precedes the date of the report; the preface states the case as follows:

The circulation of a newspaper is correctly stated by adding the number of complete copies of each separate issue printed during the entire year preceding the date of the statement and dividing the sum by the number of separate issues.

The number of complete copies printed, folded and prepared for distribution is the only number that can be absolutely known and definitely and truthfully stated. What is done with the copies has a bearing upon the quality of the circulation. No newspaper man prints copies without the intention of making some use of them. To print a surplus for the mere purpose of deceiving advertisers is too expensive. The same object may be achieved just as honestly by plain lying, which is cheaper. The difference between copies printed and copies sold is generally no more than five per cent, often much less, but sometimes as much as twenty or even ninety per cent. Just what the percentage is, when it can be known and stated, is information of much value to the advertiser who desires to form an opinion of the worth to him of a specified circulation.

In the issue for 1902, the thirty-fourth year, no change is to be noted from the usages adopted in preceding years.

On page twenty-eight of the Directory for 1903, now issued annually, one may read:

It is sometimes urged that the plan for reporting newspaper circulation adopted by the Directory is not the best. It is, however, the result of more than thirty years of painstaking study and experience, and the publishers of the Directory feel compelled to adhere to it until what appears to be a better plan is suggested. Those who advocate a new or different plan sometimes do so without bearing in mind that it must be one that will, in all cases, because without uniformity to a uniform plan for making a circulation report no basis for a comparison of circulation would be possible.

Those who consult the Directory and rely upon its circulation ratings are aware that the figures set down do not purport to be the actual issue of the papers but the fact the book is compiled, but represents the average output of the paper in question for a whole year preceding a specified date, which also precedes by some months or months the date of the issue of the Directory.

In the preface of the Directory for 1904, the thirty-sixth year of its consecutive appearance under the control of its founder, Mr. Geo. P. Rowell, one may read:

> Whoever analyzes the circulation ratings in this book will note that in thinly populated sections ratings in Arabic figures are rare. This arises from the fact that the editions of papers so situated are necessarily small, and publishers are unwilling to go on record showing a condition that, although inevitable, is unsatisfactory.
> In places of considerable importance where circulation ratings in Arabic figures are scarce and the "Z" and "Y" ratings predominate, it will be generally found, on investigation, that the publishers think or assert that they think the Directory unduly exalting about the form in which a circulating being should be prepared to be acceptable. They seem to be of the opinion that the circulation of a paper may be stated correctly enough by figures that represented the issue upon a particular day when more copies happened to be printed than on any other day.
> The system adopted in this Directory, and in no other, of reporting the different ratings accorded to every paper from year to year, for the period of ten or a dozen years, reveals the fact that in a majority of instances the publisher who is most alarm making a circulation statement that will permit the "Z" attachment to his circulation rating in the book rarely acquires sufficient ratings to enable him to cast favorable over year and decide, while those publishers whose straightforward circulation statements secure definite ratings in Arabic figures are, on examination, commonly found to carry the largest amount of local advertising patronage, a circumstance that shows they are confident at home as well as abroad.

During the later weeks of the summer of 1904 PRINTERS' INK gave space in many consecutive issues to a repetition of the matter shown within the ruled border at the top of the next column.

> What facts ought to be ascertained before being competent to answer to an advertiser such an answer as he is entitled to receive to the question, "What is the circulation of the paper under consideration?"
> PRINTERS' INK invites communications on the subject expressed in the sentence printed above, and will award a sterling silver sugar bowl to the writer whose answer appears to be most generally acceptable to newspaper men. A tea pot, cream-pitcher and salver, all of sterling silver, will be added to the sugar-bowl award if the winner can induce the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, in convention assembled, to approve and accept the conclusion expressed.

In the issue of November 4, 1904, one may read:

> The editor of PRINTERS' INK announces, that after breaking and considering numerous, but very well figured, replies to the inquiry printed above, the committee has been forced upon him that there is confusion in the minds of advertisers and publishers to an extent that justifies any general statement as to what constitutes circulation, particularly the adoption of a definition of what is meant by circulation, is not to be looked for from the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, simply because no two members can be found who can put down on paper a definition having application to all publications, nor, he can find any other member to agree to without a modification of some sort.
> Circulation is by no means the only element of value that an advertiser will consider when weighing the probable worth to him of a particular newspaper. It is the only element that can be measured and stated with exact accuracy, and accuracy of statement is only possible so far as it relates to the number of copies produced, therefore the conclusion is based upon the editor of PRINTERS' INK that:
> The circulation of a newspaper is expressed by the number of copies actually printed. What is done with the remaining copies is a matter only in fixing the value or usefulness of the circulation.

While the inquiry as to what is circulation was in progress, in the columns of PRINTERS' INK, space was given, in the issue of October 2, 1904, to the communication reproduced below:

Editor of PRINTERS' INK:

I respectfully offer for the consideration of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, the preamble and resolution given below:

Whereas the advertiser who would buy space in a newspaper or magazine desires to know the measure of service he may expect therefrom, and whereas what is known as the circulation of the newspaper or magazine is generally thought the principal item to be considered in this connection, it becomes important that an authoritative definition shall be had as to what is meant by circulation. The number of copies printed to-day is not a proper measure, for it may be much larger or smaller than the usual edition. The number of copies printed yesterday or last week is open to the same objection. And:

Inasmuch as advertising contracts are usually made by the year, or for a considerable fraction of a year, it is evidently most desirable to know what will be the circulation for a year to come, but as that is impossible, no one being able to foretell the future with certainty, it has been found by past experience that the most satisfactory method of deciding what the circulation will be for a year to come is to ascertain what it has been for the year that is past. And:

Inasmuch as circulation is by no means the only criterion of value, and the value of the circulation is influenced by many things, as for instance the price at which the publication is sold, the age or firmly established character of the publication, the fact that it is or is not received by or distributed among people who do not pay for it. And:

Inasmuch as these characteristics are to be generally ascertained by ear-marks or general reputation. And:

Inasmuch as the number of copies printed is only quality of a newspaper's circulation that is capable of being definitely measured and expressed in words and figures, it is hereby;

RESOLVED, That it is the opinion of this Association that the circulation of a newspaper is best ascertained and most correctly expressed by setting down the number of copies printed of each issue for a year, adding the figures to ascertain the total and dividing by the number of separate issues to ascertain the average issue; and that average issue, so ascertained, is what is generally understood as; and what should be understood as the circulation of the newspaper or magazine. The number of copies returned, the number given away, the number distributed on any condition other than to subscribers or bona fide buyers all have a bearing in fixing the character of the circulation, but no bearing at all upon the mere quantity of it which is the only thing that it is, at the present time, best to attempt to ascertain and to have stated in figures.

The subject of your inquiry is one to which I have devoted much thought for many years; and the definition I have formulated above is in my opinion one that every publisher can conform to, if he will, and the only one that every publisher can conform to if he is honest, conscientious and exactly truthful. Of course there can be no objection to adding as much further information as to net sales and other facts of interest to an advertiser as the publisher of the paper may deem advisable.

Very respectfully,
GEORGE P. ROWELL.

The attention of an influential member of the executive committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association was directed to the communication printed above, and his opinion asked. He said he had already seen it, had read it, that it stated the case, and the whole case; but, said he, "It would never do to bring it before a convention of the Association. They would not consider it. THE MAJORITY DO NOT WANT ANY DEFINITION OF CIRCULATION."

NEW YORK CITY, NOV. 1, 1904.

THE DAILY PAPERS OF HABANA.

[In the following article the writer has spelled "Habana" as the Cubans themselves spell it—with a B. Prior to the year 1899 Habana was spelled "Havana" by the Spaniards and "Havanah" by the English. The Havana Post still clings to the old orthography but in spite of the official publications of the United States government Habana is now spelled with a B. In the list of money order offices issued by the Postoffice Department you will find the word spelt both ways. The young lady who [illegible] money orders for the Washington (D. C.) postoffice explains this seeming inconsistency as follows: "When you write the name of the city," she says, "you spell it with a V; but if you write 'Habana province' then you spell Habana with B." The Cubans themselves, however, still persist in spelling the name of the city and the province in the same way.]

The most important dailies published in Cuba are the following, which may be described as Habana's Big Four:

Diario de la Marina, La Discusion, La Lucha, El Mundo.

The combined circulation of these four papers exceeds the circulation of all the other daily papers of the Island put together.

"DIARIO DE LA MARINA."

The Diario de la Marina is the oldest of any of the newspapers published in Cuba to-day, dating back to 1840. It is owned and edited by Spaniards, but not by that type of Spaniard known in Cuba as intransigente.* The Diario de la Marina has accepted the new order of things, if not without regret at least with philosophic resignation, and is to-day one of the warmest supporters of the government of President Estrada Palma. Nor does it display any animosity towards the people of the United States. It gives us a sly dig occasionally it is true, but it must be admitted that its criticisms of us are usually just and that its darts are as frequently leveled against Spaniards as against ourselves. During the late war it was a bitter opponent of the Weyler policy, so much so that when Habana was startled by the explosion of the Maine many at first believed that the friends of Weyler had blown up the offices of the Diario, as they had more than once threatened to do.

In its sixty-five years of existence the Diario de la Marina has witnessed every upheaval that has disturbed the peace of the Island from Narciso Lopez's first invasion down to the last revolution. It has seen a score of Governor-Generals come and go and has beheld the birth and death of innumerable political parties. It has taken an active and important part in the complex politics of the Island thro' all these years and, naturally, it has more than once been obliged to shift its ground in order to keep abreast of the times. Its rivals accuse it of inconsistency and are fond of quoting from its files opinions at variance with the beliefs it holds to-day. It is fortunate for the paper that its destiny is in the hands of men who are able to adapt themselves to changed conditions; who believe with Emerson, that it is well to "speak what you think now in hard words and to-morrow speak what to-morrow thinks in hard words again, though it contradict everything you said to-day." It is precisely this quality that makes the Diario de la Marina a vital force in the Island, instead of a weak echo of the past. No paper in Cuba exerts a greater influence in shaping public opinion, and Cubans and Spaniards alike feel that the last word on any question has not been said until the Diario de la Marina has spoken.

In make-up the Diario resembles the newspapers of Europe rather than those of our own country. Its page approximates that of the New York Evening Post in size, being the same width but a trifle deeper. It prints however only six columns to the page instead of seven. It is the only paper in the Island that prints two editions daily. The morning edition consists of eight pages; the afternoon edition of four. Subscribers receive both editions and unless you are a subscriber you don't get the paper. It is never sold on the streets. Its subscription price in Habana is $14 a year—$15 in the provinces and

*"The intransigente is the irreconcilable, the reactionary, the hopeless Bourbon; the political ostrich who has only one way of avoiding the storm of the desert or the deluge."—*Charles M. Pepper in "To-morrow in Cuba," p. 10.

$21.20 to foreign countries. The prices given are in Spanish silver, the value of which varies slightly from time to time, one American dollar being worth $1.35 to $1.40 Spanish silver. Its rate for advertisements is fifty cents (gold) an inch for each insertion; one dollar an inch if the advertisement is to appear in both morning and evening editions. Twenty per cent discount is allowed on yearly contracts, and no advertisement is accepted the value of which does not amount to two dollars; that is to say, a four inch ad may be inserted once, but a one inch ad will not be accepted for less than four insertions. It makes a special rate on Want ads (Solicitudes) — fifty cents Spanish silver for four insertions of a four line ad—and prints more announcements of this class than do all the other Habana papers put together.

Like all newspapers in Cuba the Diario de la Marina is housed in a building that was not originally built for a newspaper office. A new building is being erected for the paper on the Prado (Habana's beautiful promenade) which, when completed, will be one of the finest newspaper offices in Latin America. I am indebted to Mr. Tomas Mur, the architect of the new building for the illustration of it which appears on this page.

When the paper moves into its new quarters next July it will also install a new press. It is printed at present on a Goss perfecting press that has been in use nine years and has given (so Mr. Jose Maria Villaverde, the business manager of the Diario, told me) good satisfaction. Mr. Villaverde, however, has not yet decided whether the new press shall be a Goss or some other make. Press manufacturers will do well to follow up this tip lest England or Germany, our severest competitors in Cuba, do us out of this order.

Printing presses pay an ad valorem duty of twenty-five per cent on entering Cuba, but our manufacturers have an advantage over those of other countries, inasmuch as the reciprocity treaty existing between the United States and Cuba provides for a reduction of twenty per cent of the existing duty on presses imported from the United States.

Manufacturers of typesetting machines will also find Mr. Villaverde an interested listener. The Diario de la Marina has not yet introduced typesetting machines into its office (largely out of consideration for its compositors, many of whom have been with the paper for upwards of twenty years) but the Linotype and Monoline are used in the offices of its leading competitors, and the publishers of the Diario realize that sooner or later they will have to follow suit.

No description of the Diario de la Marina would be complete without reference to its excellent news service and to its editor, Mr. Nicolas Rivero, one of the giants of Cuban journalism. The paper receives the Associated Press dispatches and has also daily telegraphic service from Madrid. In addition it has special correspondents in New York, Washington, Paris and Madrid, whose letters are of an exceedingly high class. Mr. Rivero, the editor of the paper, is one of those men who can say in a paragraph what in less skillful hands would require a column—and say it better. He is at his best when opposing men or measures and at his worst when he tries to be amiable. Like flint he yields the sparks of his genius only in response to blows; and fortunately for those who enjoy his clever editorials his contemporaries seldom miss an opportunity to hammer him.

"LA DISCUSION."

The Discusion is first, last and all the time a Cuban paper—as thoroughly Cuban as is a dish of ajiaco. Its editor and proprietor, Mr. Manuel M. Coronado, held the rank of colonel in the army of Cuba during the late war and was secretary of the Assembly, the first legislative body to meet in Cuba after the termination of hostilities. The paper was founded in 1889 but did not achieve much importance until it was bought by Mr. Coronado five years later. In 1895, a year after the paper had passed into the hands of its present owner, the war broke out and so ardently did the Discusion espouse the cause of the revolutionists that it was suppressed by order of General Weyler. When towards the close of the Spanish-American war it became evident that Spain would be obliged to relinquish the Island, Mr. Coronado began to lay his plans for resuming publication and on the stroke of noon on January 1, 1899, as the Spanish flag was hauled down from the Governor-General's palace, the first number of the new-born Discusion was issued.

In the early days of the American intervention, when that distrust, which long years of disillusionment have made inherent in the Cuban people, led them to believe that the government of the United States did not intend to fulfill its promise regarding the independence of the Island, the Discusion shared to some extent the general feeling of uncertainty; but when it became apparent that this country would fulfill to the letter the promise of the Joint resolution, adopted by our Congress, the Discusion became, and has ever since remained, a warm friend of the American people. It did excellent work in reconciling the people of Cuba to the Platt Amendment, a measure at first bitterly opposed but which—now that its effects are better understood—is welcomed by the more intelligent class of Cubans as a guarantee against foreign invasion or domestic insurrection, so much so that a leading lawyer of Habana (Mr. Lanuza) recently declared in the columns of the Discusion that the Platt Amendment was "the last of many favors conferred on Cuba by the American people." The Discusion also did good service in aiding in bringing about the reciprocity treaty between Cuba and the United States. It takes a lively interest in all questions affecting the welfare of the Cuban people and has been, from the beginning, an ardent supporter of the policy of President Estrada Palma. In fact it may be said to be the paper that enjoys most completely the confidence of the actual government.

The Discusion is an afternoon paper and is published 365 days in the year. Its columns are the same length and width as those of the New York Sun, but it prints only six columns to the page instead of seven. It has the best mechanical equipment of any paper on the Island, including an up-to-date photo-engraving plant. With the exception of El Mundo it is the only illustrated daily published in Cuba.

A feature of La Discusion is its daily political cartoon by Mr. Ricardo de la Torriente, one of the instructors in the national School of Painting and Sculpture at Habana. One of Mr. Torriente's cartoons is here reproduced for the benefit of those American cartoonists who are in the habit of portraying Cuba as a little negro, notwithstanding the fact that the white population of the Island outnumbers the black and mixed races two to one, and that in proportion to population there are fewer negroes in the Cuban capital than there are in the capital city of the United States. Mr. Torriente's picture shows the typical Cuban peasant, or guarjiro as he is called. Anyone who has traveled in the interior of the Island will testify to the artist's accuracy of detail—the long Dundreary whiskers, the hat of jipa-japa, the guaybera or shirts worn with the tails outside the trousers, the alpargatas or canvas slippers, and the ever-present machete. If the cartoonists of the United States will cease to employ the picture of a pickaninny as emblematical of Cuba and adopt a type more in keeping with the facts they will earn the gratitude of a million white Cubans, who resent having their country unjustly advertised to the world as a black republic.

Like the Diario de la Marina, the Discusion is to have a new building but its location has not yet been decided upon. Its offices are located at present at No. 5 San Ignacio street (opposite the Cathedral,) in a large building which, though not originally intended for a newspaper office, has by virtue of extensive alterations been made into very commodious quarters. Reference has already been made to the excellent mechanical equipment of the Discusion. Mr. Coronado, the editor and proprietor of the paper, visits the United States every year and usually returns with some new labor saving device. Four Lintotype machines are already installed in the office of the Discusion and two more have recently been ordered. The paper is printed on a Goss straight line perfecting press.

The subscription price of La Discusion is $10 Spanish silver a year in Habana—$9.00 American money to foreign countries. Single copies sell on the street for five cents Spanish silver. Its telegraphic news is furnished by the Associated Press and it has in addition regular correspondents in New York, Washington, Paris, Madrid, Tampa and Key West.

The advertising rate is 50 cents (gold) an inch for each insertion, twenty-five per cent discount on yearly contracts. Mr. Arturo Primelles is business manager of the paper.

"LA LUCHA."

Under an old Spanish law whenever a newspaper offended, the Governor-General could order it to suspend publication. The order, however, was directed against the newspaper, not the publisher, hence the publisher had only to change the name of his paper as often as he got into trouble with the authorities and continue publication under some other title. The paper to-day known as La Lucha (The Strife) is well named, since, in the course of its thirty-six years of existence, it has been obliged to change its name no fewer than a score of times.

Mr. Antonio San Miguel, the present editor and proprietor of La Lucha, is a Spaniard by birth, a native of the province of Cataluna. The Catalan is the Yankee of Spain. There may be "seven kinds of Gallegos" (to quote an old Spanish saying) but, after meeting many Spaniards who hail from the province that Mr. San Miguel comes from, I am prepared to affirm that there is only one kind of Catalan—the hustler. Mr. San Miguel is no exception to the rule. He joined the staff of La Lucha as a reporter and in three years he owned the paper.

During the late war La Lucha undoubtedly had the largest circulation of any paper published in Cuba. La Discusion had been suppressed by order of General Weyler and the Diario de la Marina was bitterly opposed to the Weyler policy, so for the time being La Lucha had a decided advantage over its two most powerful rivals. Even so late as the beginning of the American intervention in Cuba La Lucha still occupied the first place among Cuban journals. At this point, however, Mr. San Miguel apparently went to sleep. No one denies that the publisher of La Lucha is one of the most resourceful newspaper men in Cuba; but no one (least of all his friends) can be blind to the fact that for the past three or four years he has neglected the splendid property that his genius built up. It is the old story of the hare and the tortoise over again. While La Lucha has been dozing in fancied security the Diario de la Marina and La Discusion have overtaken and passed it, and they mean to keep the lead if they can. Meanwhile La Lucha within the past few months has shown signs of new life, and I think we are on the eve of a beautiful three-cornered fight for supremacy in which the contestants will be La Lucha, the Diario de la Marina and La Discusion. By way of preparing for the impending struggle La Lucha has recently installed a new Scott electric press capable of turning out 16,000 twelve-page papers an hour. Four Linotypes have also been added to La Lucha's equipment and the form of the paper has been changed from an eight column blanket sheet to a handy seven column paper about the size of the New York Sun. Like its rivals, La Lucha is also to have a new building. The site selected is on Obispo street, between O'Reilly and Obispo (Habana's principal business streets) fronting the Parque de Albear.

La Lucha is an afternoon paper. In politics it is nominally independent but it inclines to the Liberal party, the party opposed to the present government. It sells on the streets for five cents a copy—yearly subscription price $12.00 Spanish silver in the Island, $8 American money to foreign countries. Its charge for advertisements is fifty cents American money an inch for each insertion, with discounts ranging from ten to twenty-five per cent on long time contracts.

Mr. Cayetano Perez has for many years been business manager of La Lucha but owing to ill health he has been obliged recently to entrust the greater part of his work to a younger man—Mr. Felipe Calderon, the assistant business manager.

"EL MUNDO."

El Mundo is the only periodical in Cuba that bears a title comparatively common among the newspapers of the United States—The World. It is the youngest of the four leading newspapers of the Island, having been established in the spring of 1901. In the beginning El Mundo published three editions daily but soon discontinued the afternoon and evening editions and now issues a morning edition only. It is an eight page paper of the size of the New York Sun. It sells for three cents on the street—two cents less than its competitors.

Mr. Antonio Herrera, the business manager of the paper, told me that El Mundo was independent in politics, but if he really believes that himself he is the only man in Cuba that does think so. Mr. Jose Manuel Govin, the editor of El Mundo, is a Liberal of what the Cubans would call the marca mayor and his paper is generally looked upon as the organ of the Liberal party. Associated with Mr. Govin in the editorial management of El Mundo is Mr. Marquez Sterling, one of the cleverest all round newspaper men in Cuba. The paper has a fairly good mechanical equipment, including a number of Monoline typesetting machines, a Goss Clipper press, and a photo-engraving plant, being (with the exception of La Discusion) the only illustrated daily in Cuba. It has sufficient employees on its staff to bring out a paper as good as any of them, and considering that it is the mouthpiece of one of the two leading political parties in Cuba, and that it is sold at a trifle more than half the price of its competitors, it ought to have achieved in its more than three years of existence a position that would have at least enabled it to pay expenses. I do not know positively that El Mundo is not on a self-supporting basis but it is common talk in Habana that the paper is losing money.

The fault seems to be in the business office. Only when Mr. Herrera, the business manager, is present is it possible to get any information concerning advertising rates, price of subscription, etc.—the price to monthly subscribers being one dollar which, curiously enough, is nine cents more than the paper costs if bought day by day on the street. For advertisements the price is twenty cents an inch each insertion, with a discount of twenty per cent on yearly contracts. I was obliged to make two visits to the office of El Mundo to secure this information. When I first called at eleven o'clock one Friday morning Mr. Herrera was absent, and although there were several people in the business office who were busily engaged in consuming cigarettes, none of them seemed able to impart any information regarding the paper that employs them. To all inquiries the answer was: "Come back at two o'clock." If one goes to the office of the Diario de la Marina, La Discusion or La Lucha at any hour of the day he will always find some one who can answer questions or take his money, if he happens to be an advertiser; but El Mundo seems to be above sordid considerations. If the business management of El Mundo is a sample of what the country may expect should the Liberal party ever come into power, the people of Cuba will do well to pray fervently for the reelection of President Estrada Palma.

ABOUT CIRCULATIONS.

The honor of being the paper of largest circulation in Cuba lies between the Diario de la Marina and La Discusion. A year ago the Diario led beyond all question, but to-day the editions of the two papers are so nearly equal that in order to state which has the largest circulation it will be necessary first to agree upon a definition of the word "circulation." If circulation means the number of copies printed (which, I believe, is the definition accepted by the editor of the American Newspaper Directory) then La Discusion is the paper of largest circulation in Cuba. If, on the other hand, circulation means the number of copies actually sold, the palm will have to be awarded to the Diario de la Marina. The Diario claims a circulation of 12,000 in round numbers and actually prints something over 11,000 copies. As it is sent only to subscribers there are no returned copies to be taken into consideration. La Discusion prints a little over 12,000 copies but grants newsdealers the privilege of returning ten per cent of the number of copies ordered. It will be seen, therefore, that in the number of copies printed La Discusion leads the Diario by about a thousand copies, while if we deduct the number of copies returned from those actually printed we shall find that the Diario is a few hundred copies ahead of its rival in actual sales. The difference either way, however, is too small to affect the general advertiser, who cannot afford to use either paper to the exclusion of the other.

In point of circulation La Lucha comes next after the Diario de la Marina and La Discusion. Its edition is always in excess of 10,000 copies—10,200 would be a fair average. I think La Lucha might fairly claim to be the paper of largest circulation in the city of Habana, since of its total edition only about 3,000 copies go to out-of-town agents, while in the case of the Diario and La Discusion fully one-half of the copies sold go to the provinces. La Lucha, like La Discusion, allows newsdealers a ten per cent return privilege.

El Mundo is a paper of very unequal circulation. It depends almost wholly upon street sales and owing to its low price is a favorite with the laboring classes, who are fickle patrons. In the absence of sensational news they are apt to neglect to buy the paper, while any unusual happening (such as the massacre in the Velasco or the Cienfuegos affair) will add several thousand to El Mundo's circulation. During the past year El Mundo has printed as few as 4,000 copies while at other times its daily issue has exceeded 12,000 copies. Its average circulation may be fairly estimated, I think, at about 7,500 copies. It allows unlimited returns and the number of copies sent back by newsdealers is seldom less than twenty-five per cent of the total number of copies printed.

THE HAVANA "POST."

The history of American journalism in Cuba began with The Volunteer, a weekly paper published by members of the 4th Tennessee Regiment of Volunteers at Trinidad, a picturesque old town on the south coast of Cuba. This paper, the publication of which was begun in January, 1899, was the first to be entered at the postoffice as second-class matter after the beginning of the American intervention.

The first American newspaper to be published in Habana was the Daily American—June, 1889. The same month saw the birth of the Times of Cuba and the Havana Herald (both of Habana), the Herald of Cardenas and The Bull Fighter, of Puerto Principe. In August of the same year The Daily Citizen appeared in Habana and was followed in December by the Commercial and Financial Review. None of these papers lasted more than a few months except the Havana Herald.

In 1900 the Havana Journal was started but was almost immediately purchased by a Cuban-American (Mr. Casanova) who also bought out the Herald and merging the two papers founded the Havana Post, the only American paper that has succeeded in maintaining itself for any length of time in Cuba.

Since the publication of the Habana Post was begun various unsuccessful attempts have been made to establish other newspapers printed in English in Habana. The Habana Critic was begun in 1900 but soon expired. The following year witnessed the appearance of the Morning Herald, the Habana Cigar and the Habana Sun, all of which have long since ceased to exist. Last year (1904) two new papers were started, neither of which exhibit any qualities that would lead one to predict a long life for them. These are the Cuban American and the Isle of Pines Appeal. The first is a little thumb-nail sheet published (if it will be so encouraged) at the American colony of La Gloria in the province of Camaguey (formerly Puerto Principe). The other is a four page weekly printed at Santa Fe in the Isle of Pines. It is published in the interest of a small number of Americans who having located on the Isle of Pines (which forms a part of the province of Habana), are now urging the government of the United States to annex that island; a suggestion about as sensible as it would be for a Cuban paper to advocate the annexation of Key West to Cuba—and just about as likely to happen.

With the exception of the two papers last named, neither of which can be considered competitors, the Habana Post is the only paper printed in English in Cuba. It is a four page paper, seven columns to the page, and is published daily except Mondays. The Post is read by nearly every American in Cuba and by some in the States as well. For reaching the American settler in Cuba—who is always a good buyer of home products—no paper so well meets the requirements of the advertiser as the Habana Post. Its rates for advertising are one dollar an inch per month with discounts for space and time contracts. The subscription price is $9.00 a year; Sunday edition only (an eight page paper) $2 a year. Single copies sell on the street for five cents Spanish silver, the usual price of the Habana dailies. Among American advertisements now appearing in the Post are those of Ozomulsion, Lydia Pinkham's Compound, Dr. Sproule (ear specialist); Madame Lefevre (beauty doctor); Chamberlain (patent medicines); A. R. Root (bee specialties) and the hotels Empire and Wellington of New York. The Post is owned by Mr. H. B. Leavitt (editor) and Mr. R. T. Tanner (business manager), who have been connected with the paper since its inception. Mr. Leavitt is a Vermonter by birth who acquired his newspaper training on the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Boston Transcript, New York Tribune and Evening Post and other papers. He represents in Habana the Scripps-McRae League and Publishers' Press and is also Habana correspondent of the New York Tribune. Mr. Tanner is an Englishman by birth and was one of the founders of the Habana Herald, the predecessor of the Post. Before coming to Cuba he worked on the London Chronicle and the Stage.

COMMERCIAL DAILIES.

There are two commercial dailies published in Habana: the Avisador Comercial and El Comercio. The first of these is devoted chiefly to the wholesale trade and has a limited circulation (possibly 1,500 copies) among importers. It is published by M. Pulido & Co., at No. 30 Amargura street. Mr. Juan Lopez Sena is the editor of the paper.

El Comercio is the organ of the Centro de Detallistas, an association of retail grocers. One finds it in nearly all the bodegas (groceries) and cafés of Habana, and it circulates to some extent in other parts of the Island as well. It prints somewhere in the neighborhood of 3,000 copies daily. Mr. Wilfredo Fernandez is the editor of the paper and Mr. Manuel Gonzales Quinones is business manager. The office of El Comercio is at No. 1 Baratillo street.

ONE-MAN PAPERS.

There are several daily papers published in Habana which are strictly speaking not newspapers at all, but rather political documents published for the purpose of keeping before the public the views of one man, or at best, a small group of men.

La Republica Cubana is the mouthpiece of Mr. Juan Gualberto Gomez, the leader of the negro race in Cuba. Mr. Gomez, who is himself a mulatto, is a brilliant writer and speaker and played an important part in fomenting the late revolution. Unfortunately for himself he was captured almost at the outbreak of hostilities and while others were achieving a reputation in the field, was a prisoner at the Spanish penal colony of Ceuta on the north coast of Africa. After the war he returned to Cuba and has since been a leader of the most radical element of the Liberal party. He was a bitter opponent of the American intervention in Cuba and his love for the United States is supposed to about equal his affection for Mr. Coronado, the publisher of La Discusion, which is best expressed by the minus sign. Some of the Discusion's cleverest cartoons have been directed against Mr. Gomez who, for a politician, is singularly thin-skinned. He sometimes devotes as much as two columns of his paper in protesting that he is not in the least annoyed by the Discusion's cartoons, and he is apparently blind to the fact that these very cartoons possess for him an advertising value difficult to estimate in dollars and cents. He was a candidate for Congress at the last election, and after polling more votes than any other candidate in Santiago province he was illegally counted out by his political opponents. One need not agree with Mr. Gomez politically nor share the views he is supposed to entertain regarding race equality, to feel that his services to Cuba make him deserving of better treatment than he has received at the hands of his countrymen. His paper, La Republica Cubana, is supposed to have a circulation of about 1,500 copies.*

La Union Espanola is a Spanish daily of a kind fortunately rare in Cuba. Like the Bourbons it never learns anything and never forgets anything. Its aim seems to be to keep alive the rancors engendered by the war. It has a small following among the intransigente, or unreconstructed class of Spaniards, and prints perhaps 1,500 copies.

El Nuevo Pais is a relic of the days before the war, when the Autonomistic party was in the full flush of its glory. El Nuevo Pais was the organ of that party, which numbered among its members the brightest men in Cuba. It has been left behind, however, in the rapid march of events and exercises but little influence on public opinion to-day. It is still an ably edited paper. Mr. Jose Maria Galvez, a prominent lawyer of Habana (formerly president of the Autonomist cabinet) being responsible for most of the matter that appears in its columns. Its circulation is variously estimated at from 1,000 to 1,500 copies.

El Liberal, as its name indicates, is an adherent to the programme of the Liberal party. Its editor is Mr. Feline Gonzalez Sarrain, member of Congress for the province of Habana. The circulation of the paper is believed not to exceed 1,000 copies.

Two other daily papers are published in Habana, La Vida and La Tarde. Neither are of any importance.

CHARLES L. BENJAMIN.

*Since the above was written I have heard that the publication of La Republica Cubana has been suspended and that Mr. Gomez is now a member of the editorial staff of La Lucha.

THE CLASS JOURNALS OF CUBA.

Class journalism in Cuba may be said not to exist outside of Habana. Attempts to publish class journals in other parts of the Island (and many such attempts have been made) have uniformly failed. Even the newspapers printed outside of Habana exist not because there is any money in the business but because the possession of a newspaper is useful to the publisher in other ways—usually political.

All of the class journals named in this article are published in Habana and the list given is (so far as I know) the most complete that has hitherto been published. I acknowledge my indebtedness to the many Cuban friends who have aided me in its preparation.

MEDICAL.

The Dean of the medical journals of Cuba is the official organ of the Academy of Sciences, a monthly known as the Anales de la Academia de Ciencias. It has been published for some forty years. As an authority on medical matters it holds in Cuba a position analogous to that occupied by the Lancet among English physicians. Worthy to be ranked in the same class with the Anales is the Cronica Medico-Quirurgica, a semi-monthly issued by the Histo-Bacteriological Labratory of Habana. These two journals are easily first among the medical publications of Cuba so far as importance of contributions goes, but they are exceeded in circulation by the three named in the following paragraph.

The Repertorio Medico-Farmaceutico (monthly) is said to enjoy the greatest circulation of any medical publication on the Island. It is published by Dr. A. Gonzales-Curquejo, the owner of one of the largest drug stores in Habana. It is not a house organ, but the business of Dr. Gonzales-Curquejo is undoubtedly benefitted by his connection with the paper. The subscription price is low (one dollar a year) and sample copies are freely distributed. The Revista de Medicina Tropical (monthly) is published in Spanish and English by Dr. Juan Guiteras, for many years Professor of Pathology at the University of Pennsylvania, and during the American intervention in Cuba chief of the Board of Health of Habana. He is widely known as an authority on tropical diseases, particularly yellow fever, which—largely due to Dr. Guiteras' efforts—is now happily extinct in Cuba. The two papers named above—Repertorio Medico-Farmaceutico and Revista de Medicina Tropical—with two others of nearly equal merit—Revista Medico Cubana (weekly) and La Revista de Medicina y Cirujia (semi-monthly)—are perhaps the best selection that could be made by an advertiser who wishes to reach the physicians and pharmacists of Cuba.

The ravages inflicted by consumption upon the people of the Island led to the formation, some years ago, of the League Against Tuberculosis in Cuba. The Boletin Mensual de la Liga contra Tuberculosis en Cuba is the official publication of this League. It is issued monthly and is now in its fourth year. Occupying the same field but of minor importance is the Problema de la Tuberculosis, a weekly.

During the summer of 1904 two new publications entered the medical field—the Boletin Sanitario Municipal de la Habana and El Mes Medico—monthlies both of them. It is too early as yet to say much about them except that they appear to be very creditable publications.

Among the other medical publications of the Island are the following: La Higiene (weekly) designed rather for the instruction of laymen than physicians; Revista Asociacion Medico-Farmaceutica (semi-monthly) the official organ of the Association of Physicians and Pharmacists of Habana: Habana Medica (semi-monthly); Boletin Clinico (monthly) and El Correo Medico, issued every ten days.

LEGAL.

In the city of Habana, with a population of nearly 250,000, one out of every 350 persons is a lawyer and one out of ever 500 persons a doctor. Whether the same proportion holds good throughout the Island I do not know, but it is safe to say that there are at least as many lawyers as physicians in Cuba. The number of papers published for lawyers, however, make but a poor showing when compared with the list of medical journals printed above. Aside from the official and semi-official publications which will be mentioned presently there are but three papers devoted to legal matters. Of these the Revista del Foro is far and away the best of the lot. The notaries public have a paper of their own, El Boletin del Colegio Notarial, published monthly by the Board of Directors of the College of Notaries of Habana. The third paper, the Revista de los Registros y del Notariado (semi-monthly) is of slight importance.

The official publication of the government is the Gaceta Oficial, which is published daily except on Sundays and legal holidays. It prints the laws approved by the President, orders issued by the various departments of government, decrees of court, sentences, etc. It is about the size of Harper's Weekly, two columns to the page, and runs from sixteen pages upwards. It is supplied free to officers of the government—subscription price to others $14 a year in Habana, $21.20 to foreign countries. Single copies sell for ten cents. Rambla & Bousa, 35 Obispo street, Habana, have the contract for printing it and are permitted to insert advertisements on the last two pages. The same firm also issues the Boletin Legistativo, a monthly recapitulation of the matter contained in the Gaceta Oficial, with notes and commentaries. Similar to the Gaceta, but more limited in scope is the Boletin Oficial de la Provincia de la Habana (daily) which reports the proceedings of the Provincial Council of Habana Province. The proceedings of the Congress are reflected in the Diario de Sesiones, which is published at odd intervals during the session.

EDUCATIONAL.

In the province of Habana, the most enlightened portion of the Island of Cuba only 53 per cent of the inhabitants are able to read and write. In Pinar del Rio, the so-called "black province" (the adjective refers to the mental darkness of the inhabitants not to any physical characteristic) only 20 per cent are able to read and write. Taking the Island as a whole statistics show that only one-third of the total population possesses any education, and of these probably not more than one in a hundred are sufficiently well instructed to pass one of our High School examinations. This is one of the results of Spain's four centuries of graft. Since the Cubans have been masters of their own destiny they have been spending on public education nearly four million dollars a year where Spain spent one million. President Estrada-Palma, himself for thirty years principal of a school in the United States, takes a warm personal interest in the Department of Education and it is safe to say that the next Cuban census will show a striking decrease in the number of illiterates.

With the beginning of the new era in Cuba the educational press came into being. There are at present five educational journals published in the Island. The most important of these is La Instruccion Primaria, the official publication of the Department of education. It is issued twice a month and is sent at the expense of the government to all the school teachers on the Island. Mr. Lincoln de Zayas, a well-known writer on educational matters is editor. The paper is printed at the press of La Moderna Poesia (Mr. Jose Lopez, proprietor) 132 Obispo street, Habana. Mr. Lopez told me that his contract with the government calls for 5,000 copies of each issue of the paper.

Second only to the official publication above named I would place La Escuela Moderna, a semi-monthly published by Mr. Arturo Diaz, some-time inspector of schools. Another good paper is Cuba Pedagogica, a monthly. Of minor importance are La Instruccion Cubana (monthly) and La Revista Escolar (semi-monthly.)

RELIGIOUS.

The religious press, which occupies so important a position among the class journals of the United States, is represented by a single publication in Cuba. This is El Amigo de la Verdad, a Catholic weekly.

LITERARY.

Among the literary journals of the Island only two deserve the attention of the general advertiser: El Figaro and Cuba y America, both excellent publications. There are few well-to-do families that cannot be reached by using these two periodicals. One finds them in the reading rooms of all the clubs throughout the Island, and in the smaller country towns a single copy of El Figaro or Cuba y America will often be passed around from neighbor to neighbor until it has made the round of the town.

El Figaro, begun in 1885, resembles Harper's Weekly in size and make-up and is profusely illustrated with half-tone engravings. It is published weekly and consists usually of sixteen pages (exclusive of cover), but often issues special numbers of sixty-four pages or more, which sell singly for a dollar Spanish silver. The regular subscription price of the paper is $12 Spanish silver a year in Cuba (equal to $7.20 of our currency) and $8 American money to foreign countries. The editor of El Figaro is Mr. Manuel S. Pichardo, perhaps the best known of contemporary Cuban poets. Mr. Enrique Jose Varona, generally acknowledged to be the ablest of Cuban essayists is a frequent contributor, as are also Mr. Marquez Sterling, "Conde Kostia," Mr. Rafael Montoro, Cuban Minister to the Court of St. James, Mr. Alfredo M. Morales, President of the Cuban Press Association, and other well-known writers. El Figaro devotes considerable space to social matters and is beyond question the best medium that could be selected for reaching the well-to-do class of Cubans. The advertising rates of the paper are $50 a page a month, or $600 for a full page for one year. A discount of 20 per cent is allowed if the price of the year's advertising is paid in advance. Mr. Ramon A. Catala, is business manager of the paper and claims for El Figaro a circulation of 7,000 copies, a claim which I believe may be safely accepted.

Of the same high class as El Figaro is Cuba y America a monthly with a weekly supplement. It is edited and published by Mr. Raimundo Cabrera, a lawyer by profession and a littérateur by inclination. It is printed in magazine form and is well illustrated. Like El Figaro it reaches the best class of Cubans.

After El Figaro and Cuba y America (a long way after them) come El Hogar and Azul y Rojo, both weeklies. The names of the other journals in this class are as follows: Revista Blanca, semi-monthly; El Pilareno, weekly; Revista Literaria, semi-monthly; Gris y Blanco, weekly; Cuba Ilustrada, weekly; Cuba Libre, weekly; La Ilustracion Cubana, semi-monthly; and Narciso Lopez, a weekly.

AGRICULTURAL.

Although nearly one-half of the wage earners of Cuba are engaged in agricultural pursuits there is no agricultural press to speak of in this country. The explanation lies in the fact that only a very small percentage of Cuban farmers are able to read. The most important of the agricultural papers that exist in the Island is the Liga Agraria, the official organ of the Agrarian League, an association composed principally of sugar-growers, of which Mr. Emilio Terry, formerly Cuban Secretary of Agriculture, is the leading spirit. The tobacco interests are represented by two papers, El Tobaco and El Tobaco de Cuba, both weeklies. The only other agricultural papers published in the Island are El Arado, weekly; and the Agricultor Cubano, a monthly. The lack of an agricultural press is partly compensated for by the large amount of space that the daily papers devote to agricultural matters.

COMMERCIAL.

In this class El Economista (weekly) is easily first. This is one of the most creditable publications issued on the Island. Its editor, Mr. Luis V. Abad is perhaps the ablest of Cuban political economists and his paper is an acknowledged authority on all matters relating to Cuban commerce and agriculture. I doubt whether any paper published in Cuba is so widely quoted by the foreign press as is El Economista. Mr. Abad is an ardent advocate of close commercial relations between the United States and Cuba, and labored untiringly to bring about the treaty of reciprocity recently concluded between the two countries.

Next after El Economista I would place the following papers: Boletin Liga Mercantil, monthly; Boletin del Centro de Comercio y Industria, monthly; and La Revista de Almacenes. Among the other papers of this class are: La Union Comercial, weekly; La Gaceta Economica, semi-monthly; and Cuba Comercial, semi-monthly.

SPORTING.

A poor lot of papers of which El Sport (weekly), devoted principally to base-ball, is perhaps the best. The others are as follows: Sports, weekly; Crewing de Sports, semi-weekly; El Cazador, a huntsman's journal; La Cancha Habanera and Beth-Jai, two weeklies devoted exclusively to Jai-Alai, the Spanish game of hand-ball, which is played in Habana from October to June.

SPANISH.

The Island of Cuba contains something over a million and a half inhabitants of which ten per cent are Spaniards, two per cent of other nationalities and the balance native born. The Spaniards form a large per cent of the merchant class and are found principally in the larger cities. Of the total number of Spaniards in the Island about one-third (50,000) reside in Habana. In addition to several daily papers (of which mention was made in a previous article) this colony supports a number of other publications, some printed in the language of Castile (the language known to us as Spanish), and others in the dialects of other provinces of Spain. Following is a list of these publications: La Union Hispano-Cubana, weekly; La Republica Espanola, monthly; Galicia, Galicia en America, and Follas Novas—three weeklies printed in the Galician dialect; El Euskalduna, a weekly for Viscayans; and El Heraldo de Asturias, a weekly for natives of the province of Asturia.

TRADE JOURNALS.

The following is a list of trade journals. El Defensor de los Gremios, the organ of the trades union, weekly; Memorandum Tipografico, organ of the typographical union, weekly; Revista Asociacion Electrica, electrical, monthly; Cuba Taquigrafica and La Escritura Veloz, for stenographers, both monthlies; La Union de Dependientes, representing the interests of the Clerks' Association of Habana; Cuba Musical, for lovers of music, weekly; De Todo un Poco, theatrical, weekly; Revista de Construcciones y Agrimensura, for builders and surveyors, semi-monthly; Revista de la Sociedad Filatelica Cubana, a journal for stamp collectors, monthly; El Bombero de Cuba, the fireman's journal, weekly; El Policia Cubano and La Gaceta de Policia, published in the interest of members of the police force, both weekly; Revista de Ferrocarriles, a railway guide published three times a month; La Marina Cubana, maratime, weekly; La Gran Logia and Juventud Masonica, masonic weeklies; and the Archivos de la Policlinica, monthly. There is also a weekly official publication of the Custom House as Circulares y Decisiones, and the bulletin of the Weather Bureau—Boletin Metereologico—neither of which insert advertisements.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The papers named here are mentioned simply because they exist, or did exist up to a few months ago. It is very likely that some of them are no longer published. Why they were ever published at all is more than I can tell. They represent nothing and nobody in particular and will sooner or later find a place in the newspaper graveyard:

MONTHLY.

Redencion,
Hijas de la Patria.

In conclusion I must not forget to mention La Caricatura, a paper hard to classify. We have nothing quite like it in the United States, though perhaps some idea of its character may be conveyed by the statement that it is one per cent Puck and ninety-nine per cent Police Gazette. Its humor inclines to grossness and its caricatures, while often clever in conception, lack artistic merit. It is printed on pink paper, on a lithographic press, in one color only (black), and devotes the greater part of its text and illustrations to crimes and criminals. It is issued weekly and is said to have a fairly large circulation among the laboring classes. CHAS. L. BENJAMIN.

THE PROVINCIAL PRESS OF CUBA.

Not until 1899, when the American intervention in Cuba began, was the custom of requiring newspapers to be registered at the postoffice as second-class matter established in the Island. Since that time reliable data concerning the number of papers published has been obtainable. I am indebted to Mr. Manolo Fresneda, chief clerk of the Department of Posts of Cuba, for the following statement showing the number of periodicals entered as second-class matter during the past six years:

1899, 180; 1900, 254; 1901, 117; 1902, 105; 1903, 114; 1904, 120; Total, 890.

If we deduct from this total of 890 the 180 papers entered the first year—nearly all of which were old established papers—we find that 710 papers have been started during the period covered by the figures, yet the total number of papers published in Cuba to-day exceeds by only 45 the number published six years ago. In other words for every paper that has succeeded sixteen have failed.

CAPITALS OF PROVINCE THUS ⊙.

MAP OF CUBA SHOWING ALL TOWNS IN WHICH NEWSPAPERS ARE PUBLISHED.

The newspapers published outside the city of Habana are, with few exceptions, a poor lot; nearly always abominably printed and sometimes not greatly exceeding a sheet of foolscap paper in size. If we omit a few of the leading provincial papers which—like El Cubano Libre, of Santiago—are printed in important towns and can afford to pay for telegraphic dispatches, the papers that remain are scarcely deserving the name of "newspaper." They are made up for the most part of clippings from the Habana press, a stickful of Gacetillas, or local happenings, and a long-winded editorial on some political topic. One hundred and fifty to 250 copies is about the extent of their circulation and even the best provincial papers do not print more than 1,000 copies.

An example of the lack of enterprise shown by country papers in Cuba is well illustrated by the following incident. On January 1, 1904, the editor of El Cubano Libre, who was also a member of the Cuban Congress, shot and killed in Santiago the editor of a rival paper. El Reporter, a three-time-a-week paper published in Manzanillo, a town in the same province, with 14,000 population and with telegraphic communication with Santiago, published the news just eight days later, having received an account of the occurrence by the weekly steamer.

The business management of these country papers is about on a par with their editorial enterprise. None of them has any fixed rate for advertising, nor anything which even pretends to be a rate card. Contracts for advertising are made at what they call a "conventional" rate, which may be likened to the formula of an old negro "mammy" in the picturesque town of Trinidad, who used to peddle fans and lace handkerchiefs to tourists. If one was sufficiently interested in her wares to ask: "How much?" she would answer, all in one breath: "The price is a dollar and a half, the least I can accept is one dollar—what will you give?"

A calculation based on the 890 publications that have been entered as second-class matter since January, 1899, shows that Revista (Review) and Eco (Echo) are the names most frequently bestowed on publications in Cuba. Revista generally indicates a class journal while Eco (usually followed by the name of the town in which the paper is printed) is more frequently given to newspapers. Next after El Eco the favorite names are La Voz (The Voice) and titles embodying the words Independence, Republic and Democracy.

Among newspaper titles in Cuba that are similar to those of the United States the favorites are The Bulletin (El Boletin), The Tribune (La Tribuna), and The Post (El Correo). Titles such as The Star (La Estrella), The Times (El Tiempo), and The Advertiser (El Anunciador)—favorite titles in the United States—are rarely used in Cuba. There is but one World (El Mundo of Habana) and no Sun at all.

Among curious titles the following may be cited. The Deluge (El Deluvio), The Sea-Cow (El Manati), The Fool (El Bobo), The Wild Indian (El Indio Bravo), and the Bitter Peel (La Cascara Amarga). It is worthy of note that none of these papers with freak titles long survived.

Within the past year, as a result of the merging of the many political groups that formerly existed into two great parties, the words Moderado and Liberal have become favorite titles, Moderado (Moderate) signifying the conservative party, which is at present in power, and Liberal the radicals who are opposed to the government of President Estrada Palma. In a general way it may be said that the Moderados wish for close commercial relations with the United States and favor (or are at least reconciled to) the Platt Amendment; while the Liberales are pledged to labor for the repeal of the Platt Amendment and have certain impracticable notions regarding the immediate need of an army and navy, although it is perfectly plain to those who do not share these views that what the country needs most are roads and school houses. In short, the Moderados may be described as the party of common sense and the Liberales as the party of dreamers.

In the list of papers which follows an "M" after the name of a paper signifies that it supports the programme of the Moderado or conservative party; while an "L" indicates that the paper so marked inclines to the Liberal or radical party. Papers marked with an "I" claim to be independent but, in most cases, papers so marked may be safely classed as Liberal papers in disguise. It may be stated as a rule (to which there are, however, a few exceptions) that the Moderado objects are more widely read in the provinces of Pinar del Rio, Habana, Matanzas and Santa Clara, while the Liberal papers lead in circulation in the two eastern provinces of Camaguey (formerly Puerto Principe) and Santiago.

PROVINCE OF PINAR DEL RIO.

GUANAJAY, pop. 6,484.

El Eclipse (M), semi-weekly.

PINAR DEL RIO, pop. 6,886.

La Independencia (Liberal), daily; Unión Pinareña (M), daily; El Pueblo (M), semi-weekly; La Esfera (Spanish), semi-weekly; El Moderado (M), semi-weekly; El Indice (L), semi-weekly; El Pathfinder (L), weekly; El Fos (Liberal), weekly.

The most literary and most widely circulated paper in Pinar del Rio is La Independencia. El Moderado probably comes next and for third place the Unión Pinareña. The rest are of minor importance. I am informed that El Indice and El Pathfinder frequently suspend publication for weeks at a time.

PROVINCE OF HABANA.

In previous issues of PRINTERS' INK I have described the papers published in the city of Habana. The Habana papers cover the whole province of Habana as thoroughly that there are only a few towns in this province outside of the capital that possess newspapers of their own. These towns and the papers published therein are as follows:

GUANABACOA, pop. 11,[illegible].

La Villa, weekly; La Tribuna, weekly; La Golondrina (literary), semi-monthly.

GUINES, pop. 8,149.

El Guinero (L), weekly; La Unión (M), weekly; El Independiente (L), weekly; La Fusión (L), weekly.

GUIRA DE MELENA, pop. 5,816.

El Gallito (Spanish), weekly; El Magisterio (educational), weekly.

MARIANAO, pop. 5,416.

Hatuey (L), semi-weekly.

REGLA, pop. 11,363.

El Clarin (I), weekly.

SAN ANTONIO DE LOS BAÑOS, pop. 8,178.

24 de Febrero, weekly; El Triguamabo, weekly.

PROVINCE OF MATANZAS.

CARDENAS, pop. 21,940.

El Popular (I), daily; La Opinion (M), daily; El Heraldo de Cárdenas (I), daily; La Union (L), daily.

COLON, pop. 7,[illegible].

El Republicano Conservador (M), weekly; El Nacional (L), weekly.

Of the two papers named above El Republicano Conservador is said to be the more important.

MATANZAS, pop. 35,[illegible].

El Correo de Matanzas (I), daily; El Republicano Conservador (M), daily; El Jueves (I), weekly.

Of the two dailies El Republicano Conservador has probably the larger circulation.

PROVINCE OF SANTA CLARA.

CORRALES, pop. 7,[illegible].

El Clarin (L), three times a week.

CIENFUEGOS, pop. 20,[illegible].

La Correspondencia (Spanish), daily; El Independiente (Spanish), daily; La República (M), daily; El Comercio Cubano (L), daily; El Navegant (L), daily; La Opinion (M), daily; El Comercio (I), daily; El Moderado (M), daily; La Solidaridad (L), weekly; Cienfuegos Elegante (Liberal), weekly; La Instructora de la Infancia (educational), weekly.

La Correspondencia is the paper of largest circulation in Cienfuegos. It is a commercial rather than a political paper. Of the La Correspondencia the most important daily is probably La República.

CRUCES, pop. 4,173.

La Opinion (M), [illegible] times a week.

[illegible], pop. 7,[illegible].

La Libertad (I), [illegible] times a week; El Sportsman (M), weekly.

RODAS, pop. 5,831.

La Flecha (M), [illegible] times a week.

SANTA CLARA, pop. 10,[illegible].

La Prensa (M), daily; La Publicidad (L), daily; El Correo Español (Spanish), daily; El Lazo (religious), [illegible] times a week; La Cuna Estudiantil (juvenile), monthly.

Of the daily papers La Prensa and La Publicidad are [illegible], the first named being probably the larger circulation.

SANCTI SPIRITUS, pop. 14,[illegible].

El Fenix (I), daily; El Liberal (I), [illegible] times a week; El Comercio (L), weekly; La Independencia (literary), semi-monthly; El Tabal Macenito (Spanish), monthly.

El Comercio is the best known paper of Sancti Spiritus and is probably the paper of largest circulation as well. El Fenix is a close second.

SANTA CLARA, pop. 13,[illegible].

El Republicano (M), daily.

There are several other papers published in Santa Clara, particulars of which I have not been able to obtain. The one mentioned is the best known of all.

TRINIDAD, pop. 11,120.

El Telegrafo (I), daily; El Progreso (L), daily; El Eco (M), daily; La Antorcha (L), weekly; La Mariposa (literary), weekly; Lectura Dominical (religious), monthly.

El Telegrafo is the oldest paper in Trinidad and is believed to exceed the others in circulation.

YAGUAJAY, pop. 1,206.

El Siglo XX (M), weekly; La Realidad (L), weekly.

PROVINCE OF CAMAGUEY.
(Formerly Puerto Principe.)

CAMAGUEY, pop. 25,102.

Las Dos Republicas (L), daily; La Voz del Pueblo (L), daily; El Liberal (M), daily; La Picota (labor organ), daily; El Arte (musical), weekly.

Las Dos Republicas is the best of the daily papers published in Camagüey; El Liberal ranking next in importance.

NUEVITAS, pop. 4,228.

El Obrero (M), weekly.

SANTA CRUZ DEL SUR, pop. 1,210.

El Voz del Obrero (labor organ), weekly.

PROVINCE OF SANTIAGO.

BARACOA, pop. 4,937.

El Mambi (M), weekly.

GIBARA, pop. 6,841.

El Triunfo (M), daily; El Progreso (L), daily.

El Triunfo is the better of the two.

GUANTANAMO, pop. 7,137.

La Voz del Pueblo (L), daily; El Nacionalista (M), daily; El Arpa Cubana (literary), weekly.

Of the two dailies La Voz del Pueblo enjoys the larger circulation.

HOLGUIN, pop. 6,045.

El Eco de Holguin (L), semi-wekly; El Correo de Oriente (M), semi-weekly.

El Eco de Holguin is one of the best papers published in the province of Santiago, outside the city of Santiago, and enjoys a larger circulation than its rival El Correo de Oriente.

MANZANILLO, pop. 14,464.

El Reporter (L), 3 times a week; El Debate (L), semi-weekly; El Porvenir (M), semi-weekly; El Imparcial (Spanish), semi-weekly; El Postal (literary), weekly.

El Reporter and El Porvenir are the leading papers of Manzanillo. The former (which I have marked as Liberal) is strictly speaking Masoista—that is to say it is the organ of General Bartolomé Masó, a native of Manzanillo, who was President of the Cuban government during the war. He was nominated for the Presidency of the Republic in 1901 but was defeated by Tomas Estrada Palma, the actual President. El Porvenir supports the political programme of President Palma. The other papers published in Manzanillo are not worthy of serious consideration.

SANTIAGO, pop. 43,090.

El Cubano Libre (M), daily; La Independencia (L), daily; La Republica (L), daily; La Colonia Espanola (Spanish), daily; El Noticiero Cubano (L), semi-weekly; El Imparcial (independent) weekly; Avante (labor organ), weekly; El Catolico (religious), weekly; Cuba Literaria (literary), weekly; El Estudiante (college paper) semi-weekly; La Revista Juridico Notarial (legal), semi-weekly; Revista Municipal (official), daily.

El Cubano Libre and La Independencia are the two leading papers of Santiago, the first named having the larger circulation. La Colonia Espanola represents the interests of the Spanish residents and does not mix in politics. La Republica and El Noticiero Cubano represent the negro element. The Revista Municipal is the official publication of the Ayuntamiento, or Common Council, of the city and prints only official notices.
